Mystery lovers prowl through Mohonk Mountain House in search for clues to solve a make-believe murder — a regular event for about 300 amateur detectives.

Mystery fans gather to solve zany murder

A group of amateur detectives played Sherlock Holmes for a wacky weekend when they flocked to a remote hotel to solve a murder mystery.

All the elements of a bizarre crime were there — the body of the victim, "Miss Avaricia Snit," six suspects, all with a good motive for killing her, a locked guest room with clues ranging from overturned furniture to a mail pouch.

Mystery buffs had to unravel the plot and present their case to the judges in 24 hours.

In this case, crime didn't pay — the people who tried to solve it did. The 300 would-be sleuths paid up to $285 for the weekend at the Mohonk Mountain House in New Paltz, N.Y.

The bizarre "vacation" — held annually for the past four years — has become such a hot seller that every one of the 300 tickets was grabbed up five hours after they went on sale.

"Most of these people are real mystery buffs and all year long they read mystery books. Then, they come here to have a first-hand opportunity to play detective, to put their own detective skills to work," hotel program director Carolyn Fiske told The NEWS.

The sleuths — divided into 20 teams of 15 people each — opened instruction envelopes and began their trip into the spooky mystery.

Lights in the 112-year-old hotel flickered and faded. "Nancy Drew" — the famous teen detective — entered the room and discovered the body of the "victim," a dummy stuck in a metal urn.

She introduced each of the six suspects, each with a solid motive for wanting the greedy and mean Avaricia Snit dead.

There was Broker Buchs, a publisher and drunk, who had the most to gain financially from her demise. There was Red Tape, a love-sick postal clerk who wanted to marry a young woman who worked for the victim.

There was Sherrill Koames, noted Sherlock Holmes scholar, who owed Avaricia Snit some money and was accused by another suspect of leading a double life.

The last suspect to see the victim alive was Sue Torte, a disbarred lawyer who had gone to Avaricia's room shortly before she was killed.

The amateur sleuths prowled the drafty corridors of the old hotel searching for clues. They questioned suspects.

They tried to piece together the evidence — a smoldering love note, a subway token, two cups of tea, some bank deposit slips, a typewriter with a key missing.

It was the typewriter that turned out to be the murder weapon, but not one of the teams named the right culprit — Sherrill Koames.

"The judges retired for the night and when the winner was announced it went to the team with the most creativity — the sleuths who pinned it on Nancy Drew.

"They said she was tired of being a teenager in pigtails never allowed to grow up."

Woman buys moped after being banned by 3 driving schools & flunking 7 tests

A 50-year-old landlady has decided to buy a moped — after flunking seven driver's license examinations, blowing money on 273 driving lessons and being banned by three driving schools.

Betty Tudor turned in her beginner's license and sold her car when she decided being a motorist was, for her, a lost cause.

"One of them ended up in a mental hospital," says Betty. "But I'm not sure I was totally to blame."

"I saw a friend up a ladder, waved to him and missed the stoplight.

"So I slammed on the brakes," she recalls.

On the last test, the examiner was checking his notes when Betty turned into a one-way street. He looked up and panicked — and, of course, flunked her.

13 is family's lucky number

Cute little Mary Elizabeth Brauntz was born on Friday the 13th — but the number isn't unlucky. It's a family tradition.

Her mom, Lois, was born on Friday the 13th in December 1946.

Her sister, Julie, was born on Friday the 13th in May 1974.

Her doctor, Richard Beiman, was also born on Friday the 13th.

And when a Cincinnati, Ohio, newspaper sent someone to the hospital nursery to take little Mary's picture it was discovered that the photographer, Natalie Fobes, was born on Friday the 13th.

Oh yes, Mary Elizabeth weighed 6 pounds, 7 ounces at birth — and that adds up to 13. And so do the digits in her mom's hospital room — 4414.

Talking building says it is sorry

"I'm going to be a 40-story office building with 275,000 square feet of space when I grow up," says the loudspeaker at the building site in bustling New York City.

The idea, says a spokesman for the construction company, was to explain what was going on at the site to curious passers-by.

Man, 73, clubs mugger senseless

A 73-year-old man clubbed a young, tough mugger senseless — and left him sprawled on the sidewalk.

Jose Ramos, who can't speak English, stammered into a nearby store in Boston and told the manager he had been attacked by a man who tried to take his money.

Jose said he whacked the thief over the head with his cane several times.

Boy, 10, robs two restaurants

A tough-talking boy, about 10, robbed two restaurants at pistol point!

Cops in Dallas say the boy netted about $600 from the two Sambo's Restaurants. They said in one of the holdups, the child-hoodlum threatened to kill the cashier if she didn't hand over money.

Docs recover knife patient swallowed

A man tried to dislodge a pill from his throat with a table knife — and swallowed it.

Doctors at a Seattle, Wash., hospital say the man came to the emergency room complaining that an aspirin-like pain pill had lodged in his throat and was burning.

The man, whose name was withheld, didn't tell them about the knife until startled attendants spotted it on an X-ray.

Surgeons removed the knife, lodged handle-down in the man's chest cavity. It hadn't caused any damage, they say.

School orders ban on smooching

A high school principal has nipped Spring fever in the bud — putting a ban on hugging and kissing by students.

Principal Hazen Bernard says the ban on smooching at the high school in Eagle Point, Oreg., was the result of some distasteful displays of affection.

A teacher, Mike Curtis, says he put a clock on one kiss — and it lasted a disgusting 30 seconds.

Student representative to the school board, Bill McCulloch, admitted the kissing situation was getting out of hand:

AVALANCHE!

Driver survives as moving wall of killer rock engulfs his truck

By DICK DONOVAN

"The whole mountainside was roaring down on me. I was terrified! I thought, 'This is it. I'm going to die!' "

Those hideous thoughts exploded in Jan Miller's brain seconds before his truck was crushed into a mass of twisted steel and glass by a thundering avalanche.

But when the shattered dump truck finally slammed to a stop more than 300 feet down the rugged mountainside, the 24-year-old road builder miraculously was still alive.

Jan and his co-workers were building a logging road near the upper Green River, just east of Washington's lava-spewing Mount St. Helens, when the crushing tidal wave of earth and debris swept down on them.

"It was raining bad and the road was near a gravel pit where there had been some heavy blasting," Jan told The NEWS.

"We knew the hill above us had been loosened by the blasts, but we didn't think it would come down like it did.

"I was sitting in my truck and it was pouring rain at the time. Then I glanced in my rearview mirror . . . God! . . . all I could see was a mountain of earth coming at me."

Jan said his first impulse was to jump out of the truck and make a run for safety.

But before he could act the big vehicle was caught by the avalanche and swept over the mountainside.

"The truck flipped end-over-end with me flying around inside like a rag doll," Jan said.

"When it didn't stop after the first roll, I thought I was a dead man. I never dreamed anything could be that terrifying."

As tools flew around him like deadly missiles and the truck's cab splintered with every sickening roll, the young driver made a frantic dive for the floorboards.

"The truck just kept rolling down the hill," Jan recalled. "It crashed through an old stand of Douglas fir trees. They're as hard as concrete, but the truck mapped them just like matchsticks. Finally it slammed into a tree and, thank God, it stopped.

"What was left of the truck was lying upside down more than 300 feet down the mountain.

"I don't know how I lived through it. It's just a miracle. I should be dead, so it must be a miracle."

But Jan says he has more than just his life to be grateful for — because his girlfriend, 23-year-old Rhonda Wend, was to have been with him on the day the avalanche struck.

"She was going to spend the day with me, because she wanted to see Mount St. Helens," Jan explained. "But we plan to be married in June, so I decided it would be best for her to stay home and do some planning.

"If she had come along, she would have been with me in the truck. There's just no way she could have lived through it. Rhonda would be dead today."

Jan recuperates after his ordeal with his girlfriend Rhonda Wend. He says a miracle saved his life during the avalanche.

After 'dying' of overdose woman, 32, comes back to life in a city morgue

Her body was moved from home to a nearby hospital in Stroud, England, and from there to a larger hospital about 10 miles away.

It was there — as her body was being lifted from a coffin to a tray in the morgue — that the undertaker noticed a strange look on the corpse's face.

"She had an elated smile on her face that had not been there before," said shocked morgue attendant Barrie White.

"It was almost as if she could see beyond this life, almost as if someone was talking to her and she was responding."

Barrie called in a resuscitation unit and 24 hours later, Jacqueline was sitting up in bed, eating a light meal.

Jacqueline Rosser, woman who came back from the dead.

Her heartbroken father had found her unconscious, lying next to an empty bottle of pills.

A local doctor signed the death certificate and the coroner gave permission for the body to be taken to the morgue.

"I think the movement of the hearse may have reactivated her heart," Harris said.

"I don't blame the doctor for his diagnosis. As far as I'm concerned, my daughter was clinically dead and had already started her journey to the other side."

Blind man regains sight thanks to his lucky fall

A husband and father of three was blind for six years but his sight was miraculously restored when he fell and hit his head on a concrete wall.

"It had to be a miracle," said Joseph Sardler who had been told he would never be able to see again. "God reached down at that moment and took out whatever was wrong with me. It's the only explanation."

Joseph was blinded in his right eye when he was 14 months old when he was hit in the head with a fireplace poker.

When he was 28 he lost his other eye to a disease that attacked the part of the eyeball where images are formed. Doctors said there was no chance that he would ever see again.

But God worked His miracle the night the 32-year-old blind man made his way down the stairs to the basement of his Mt. Airy, N.C., home.

Joseph says he tripped over the family dog, tumbled down the stairs and hit his head on a concrete wall.

He was knocked unconscious and when he came to he thought he was dreaming.

He could see!

He saw an old gray furnace and then the faces of his wife and children who had rushed to the top of the stairs when they heard him fall.

"Oh, my God I can see, I can see!" he cried as tears of joy streamed down his cheeks.

His family ran down to help him up and everyone was hugging, laughing and crying at the same time. Not only had the sight in his left eye come back but he was seeing out of his right eye for the first time since he was a baby.

"I had never seen my little daughter, Tammy, and she was more beautiful than I had ever imagined," he told The NEWS. "And my wife was still so pretty. My two boys Joe and Tony had changed so much."

Joseph Sardler hugs his 5-year-old daughter, Tammy, who he first saw when he miraculously recovered his eyesight.

He was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance and was pronounced uninjured from the fall.

Doctors were amazed that he was no longer blind.

He now wears glasses which give him perfect vision in his left eye and fairly good vision in his right.

His doctor said he doesn't think Joseph will lose his sight again.

"Now I can do so many of the things I've longed to do," he said happily. "Now I can go fishing with my boys, help the kids with their homework and find a job."

Inventor produces seagoing bicycle

An expert bicycle racer is expanding his horizons — he's invented a seagoing bike and plans to tackle the Atlantic Ocean.

Yvon Le Caer of Miami is finalizing plans for the risky crossing of the Gulf Stream — a 60-mile jaunt from the Bahamas to Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Yvon says he's planned building his water bike since he was a kid, but only recently sat down and went to work on it.

The result is a bike frame welded to two pontoons. The bike's pedals drive a propeller that sticks about a foot deep in the water. He steers the bike boat with the handlebars which control a rudder.

Yvon says he often gets speeds up to four or five knots in practice runs. He figures that's fast enough to get him across the Gulf Stream in 10 or 12 hours — depending on weather and sea conditions.

The inventor says he won't have any trouble keeping up the pace because he regularly rides his land bike 500 miles a week. He also has been a regular winner in bicycle road races since he and his wife moved to America from Morocco 15 years ago.

But for the ocean voyage, Yvon is calling on assistance from seagoing men. He says he's never been much for water sports.

When he makes his bid to cross the Gulf Stream — he'll start from Cat Cay in the Bahamas and hopes to end his journey at the Fort Lauderdale beach — he'll be guided by four support boats.

Aboard one boat will be a veteran navigator who'll see to it that the landlubber bicyclist doesn't stray off the course.

Yvon says he's thinking of producing a line of water bikes to capitalize on his zany idea once he makes his voyage.

He says bicycling on water has all of the advantages of biking on land — and there's no

Taxpayers' burden eased by millionairess who pays for much city equipment

Most recently, city fathers in Epsom, N.H., announced the mystery woman had donated $66,000 to buy rescue equipment for the fire department.

In past months, the supercitizen has outfitted the town library, fire and police departments with the latest equipment.

The millionairess demands that her name not be divulged — but insiders say just about everyone knows who she is. They just won't mention her name.

"If they make the mistake of saying the name, they may blow everything — now and in the future," reports Spencer Stremlau, a member of the town's government.

He wants okay for hay-burning taxi

A man has asked city hall to approve his application to open a horse-drawn taxi service because he can fuel his buggy for $1.50 a day — compared to about $30 a day for a motor driven taxi.

Tiny wristwatch TV is on the way

Electronics wizards have developed a TV set that you can wear on your wrist!

And the price of initial models of the mini-TV is $115.

The U.S. watchmaker, Timex, is producing the set in England where the British government is helping finance the operation.

Clive Sinclair, developer of the set, says the set has a 4-inch by 2-inch screen and is more powerful than conventional television sets.

Back-sleeping kids grow up handsome

Parents can keep their babies from growing up to be ugly if they let the child sleep on its back, says an expert.

Dr. Hal Huggins, a dentist who has studied facial development, says many parents have been told that a baby that sleeps on its back will flatten the back of its skull.

So what, says Dr. Huggins. That's better than letting the baby sleep on its stomach and causing its face to become distorted.

Dr. Huggins, author of a paper, "Why Raise Ugly Kids?" says proper nutrition and sleeping on its back will give a baby a chance to grow up to be a handsome person.

Gal who shot J.R. makes a sizzling return to TV's Dallas

. . .and the last show of the season will end in yet another shocking cliffhanger

By RAFE KLINGER

The lady who shot nasty oilman J.R. — sizzling Mary Crosby — is returning to TV's top show "Dallas" for another run-in with her ex-lover — and another mysterious cliffhanger at season's end.

Vowing vengeance on Kristin, J.R. is wheeled from hospital by his long-suffering wife Sue Ellen, played by Linda Gray.

Last summer, the entire world waited with bated breath for the fall episodes of "Dallas" to answer the question: who shot J.R.?

Mary, as J.R.'s mistress Kristin, turned out to be the guilty party. Cleverly, she escaped J.R.'s wrath by telling him that she was carrying his baby.

J.R. ran Kristin out of town, vowing:

"I'll take care of her in my own way."

With nearly the entire season gone, "Dallas" producers have decided to bring Kristin back for the last two episodes, including the season finale May 1.

And The NEWS has learned from a spokesman for the show that the final episode won't disappoint.

"The last show of this year will be another cliffhanger that will keep viewers guessing until the fall," he told The NEWS.

Mary is bubbling over the boom in her career, but she's also thrilled to jump back to "Dallas."

"It's a treat to be part of the show," she said, adding: "I would like to go back to 'Dallas' and do some great spots . . . but to be a regular would not be good for the show or me."

Meanwhile, a good friend of Mary's revealed why her character "Kristin" is returning.

"The episodes are to let the fans know what happened to J.R.'s baby," she said. "He still really wants to get her, but he loves children."

Will Mary and J.R.'s meeting involve another violent clash that leaves viewers guessing until next fall?

The "Dallas" spokesman remained mysterious:

"I didn't say that . . . but you can be assured that J.R. and Kristin are not friends."

"I don't know too many people who have been shot by someone who still likes that person."

He refused to say whether or not Mary will be asked to become a cast regular again, but hinted that she may be back next fall to help solve this season's ending mystery.

"Sure, she's still a strong part

J.R. seduced Kristin and made her pregnant. She will return to the show and confront him with her baby.

ing story so the characters and elements can come back again and again."

With "Dallas" still riding high on top of the ratings, the show's producers obviously didn't bring Mary back to pull in more viewers.

And J.R. has added a whole new string of beauties to his stable of mistresses — so he doesn't need the troublesome Kristin. The most plausible reason for the return, then, could be to tie Kristin's character in with a new future mystery ending.

Will J.R. be shot again?

Will an attempt be made on Kristin's life?

"Dallas" producers won't say — so viewers will just have to tune in and find out for themselves.

Bing's talented daughter . . .

It's very unlikely that the 350 million people who watched the episode of "Dallas" which finally revealed who shot J.R. will ever forget Mary Crosby, Bing's beautiful dark-eyed daughter.

After she left the show, the plot had her pregnant with J.R.'s child, Mary completed a new pilot for ABC and started filming a remake of the Doris Day classic, "Midnight Lace."

But she has also found time to keep up with her home life — she is happily married to composer Eb Lottimer.

"My marriage means very much to me," Mary said. "I don't want to become another Hollywood statistic.

"The things that are important to me are my husband, my animals and my books. These things come before my career."

Mary made her acting debut at age 6, when she appeared in "Peter Pan." She graduated from high school at 15, and entered the University of Texas at Austin, majoring in drama.

Two years later she became the youngest ever member of the renowned American Conservatory Theatre, and also found time to do orange juice commercials and holiday specials with the entire Crosby clan.

Mary said the "Dallas" producers want her back on the show as a regular, but she said: "I don't want to play Kristin for the rest of my life. There are too many other roles I want to play in films and the theater."

. . . just weary mailmen

"You gotta take a break somewhere," said this unidentified Kansas mail carrier after he took the weight off his feet and enjoyed the warmth of a wintery sun from inside a cozy mailbox placed in a quiet neighborhood.

Boy violinist, 5, hailed as 'another Mozart' by leading music experts

By DIANE JACOBS

An incredible 5-year-old genius has stunned the musical world with his stunning violin performances. In fact, pint-sized Tony Spatz is classed as another Mozart.

At 4, he entertained a crowd of 7,000 and brought the house down at a country music festival.

At 5, he has written music, performed before some master teachers, competed against adults in fiddling contests and appeared on national TV.

Amazingly, the little prodigy from Bend, Oreg., can slip from country blue grass to complicated classical compositions as easily as other kindergarten youngsters change toys.

"You can show him something once and that's it," says Tony's mom, Winona Spatz. "He can read music, but he thinks that slows him down. If you watch him while his teacher is showing him a new classical piece, and they're playing it together, he'll watch her fingers and the next time he plays it on his own straight through."

"I used to read to him while I was nursing him and he started reaching out to grab the books," his mother said. "By the time he was a year old, he could recognize words.

"By the time he was 2 he was spelling words like rooster, chicken, horse and house. Six months later Tony could recite the alphabet backwards."

Now the boy reads at an adult level — though he won't enter first grade until fall. But it's the musical ability of the blond-headed, blue-eyed boy that has amazed those who hear him.

'He can play everything from country to classics'

Tony Spatz is being hailed as another Mozart.

He has perfect pitch, can play by ear a tune he's heard only once, plays up a storm on the guitar and is learning how to play piano. Tony practices 45 minutes to an hour every day, and his teacher Elizabeth Edwards disciplines him by making him play arduous Bach, Beethoven and Mozart over and over again.

"Unfortunately violin lessons are a serious, picky matter and he hates them," Mrs. Edwards said. "But I would still class him with Mozart and Jascha Heifetz."

But the 41-pound genius knows that when he is finished with the long-haired music he can play what he wants — knee-slapping blue grass tunes.

And when the prodigy puts down his fiddle, he's off and running with all of the other children his age, or watching his favorite cartoons on television.

Parents made funeral plans and put her in God's hands

Critically ill almost since birth, 20-month-old Melynda Hope Wallace clung to life by a thread, unable to retain food, skeleton-thin and suffering the ravages of a malignant tumor, inoperable because it had invaded the brain stem.

By RUTH ACKLEN

"We placed her in the hands of the Lord," Pam Wallace said. Ray even contacted a mortuary to discuss funeral arrangements.

That was in November 1979. Now Melynda is a perky, normal child and her parents are convinced that God has healed her. Medical science supports their belief. A brain scan performed March 3 showed no sign of the tumor that threatened her life.

"Give God the glory," claim her devoutly religious parents. They are especially thankful for the prayers and fasting offered for Melynda by fellow members of the United Pentecostal Church International over a 2½-year period, as well as for prayers and financial and emotional support from countless friends and relatives closer to home.

The Wallaces still have problems, but these seem easy to bear.

Pam, 28, is legally blind, as are an older sister and a younger brother, all victims of a hereditary ailment that doctors can't cure. Pam graduated from high school and manages her homemaking chores capably, but she can't read or drive a car, and needs guidance when she has to sign her name on a legal document.

Ray, 36, has been unemployed since January. His responsibilities are heavy, since the family includes three sons in addition to little Melynda. The Wallace sons, all healthy, are serious, dark-haired Aaron, 11, and lively blond 5-year-old twins, Daniel and David.

Melynda, born March 2, 1978, never was completely well, but until she was 8 months old she was growing at a normal rate, and had started to learn to walk and talk.

Melynda gradually lost interest in eating, and began vomiting most of what she did eat.

In August 1979, she was taken to the University of Oregon Medical Sciences Center in Portland where a brain surgeon was called in. A brain scan was ordered, and tumor surgery scheduled. Agonizing hours of waiting while Melynda was in surgery from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. ended with another staggering blow. Surgeons told the Wallaces that they had removed "about half a cup" of the tumor, but couldn't get the rest because it was winding its tendrils into the brain stem, where control centers are located.

They said Melynda might live "six months to a year."

Home again, Melynda still was unable to retain food. She slept very little, and each of her parents averaged about three hours sleep a night as they took turns caring for the baby.

The Wallaces had been unable to obtain medical insurance for Melynda, and had no money to meet the hospital and doctor bills.

After the family's desperate financial plight was publicized, people contributed to the Melynda Hope Wallace Fund, and free treatment was offered at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco, Calif. Melynda was in the hospital there for five weeks, during which she seemed to be losing ground every day. The San Francisco doctors gave her one to three months to live.

So her parents brought her home to die. It was then that they prayed that death would end her misery.

By the end of February 1980, the Wallaces decided to discontinue the medication prescribed for Melynda, since it only seemed to intensify her suffering.

Suddenly on March 17, 1980, a miracle happened. The little girl began eating. She started talking, trying to walk and playing with her brothers.

By May 1980, the Wallaces were sure their daughter had been healed and stunned doctors said the tumor had miraculously vanished.

Melynda now weighs 27 pounds, is beginning to speak in full sentences, and can run as well as walk.

Dr. James K. Van Fleet Claims:

Dear Friend:

Here, revealed for the first time ever, is the amazing story behind the miracle health secret, CHV! What you are about to hear may at first seem astounding, incredible — but says noted doctor James Van Fleet, "I have seen these fantastic results demonstrated time and again in my practice."

Pulled from a 30 year accumulation of extraordinary case histories in his private files, here are just a few examples of the astounding results achieved:

• Eyesight Regained • Senility Reversed • Crippling Arthritis Healed • Excruciatingly Painful Kidney Stones Dissolved • "Incurable" Psoriasis Spectacularly Cured • Hearts Rehabilitated — Patients Can "Do Everything after Heart Attack" • All Kinds of Pain Relieved • Failing Hair Stopped and Hair Restored according to some researchers!

Perhaps you're thinking that miracle healing CHV must be very rare and expensive — used only by the wealthy people who frequent European Health Spas.

Not at all, says Dr. Van Fleet, you will find CHV inexpensive and easily available. You've probably passed by CHV dozens of times on the shelves of your local supermarket or health food store — completely unaware of the fantastic healing potential! For example, using a CHV ion and concentrate, see how...

KEVIN WALKS AGAIN! Kevin, 34, confined to a wheelchair because of rheumatoid arthritis, got no relief through the drugs nor the painfully hot baths his doctor had prescribed. After only a short time on CHV the swelling and excruciating pain were gone! Now back at work, he has never been troubled since!

CURES YOUR MAJOR HEALTH PROBLEMS — NATURALLY!

Two CHV teas are so powerful that they have healed some major ailments, states Dr. Van Fleet, yet this health secret is so mild that he routinely prescribes large amounts — sometimes up to ten times or more the usual amount — for ailments with complete confidence! See how it helped the mother of one of Dr. Van Fleet's patients:

AVOIDS CRIPPLING SURGERY! Fearful and in bad shape, an elderly diabetic woman was brought to Dr. Van Fleet's office by her daughter, Brenda F. Brenda explained that, because her mother's badly ulcerated foot had not healed after three weeks in the hospital, her doctor wanted to amputate it just above the ankle! Brenda's mother said absolutely not, and signed herself out of the hospital! Dr. Van Fleet then examined the elderly woman, and recommended that she use CHV every day. Very shortly, the ulcer healed completely, and she avoided the needless surgery that would have crippled her for the rest of her life!

BETTER HEALTH WITHOUT DRUGS!

Naturally, if your doctor prescribes a drug that you need, do not hesitate to take it. However, Dr. Van Fleet has found that many patients do not need prescription drugs to restore their good health and maintain their vitality. In fact, he states that drugs destroy the vitamins taken into the body, and often cause such undesirable side effects that their use is questionable!

On the other hand, this miracle remedy is not a dangerous drug — CHV cannot hurt you, states Dr. Van Fleet, since THERE ARE NO UNDESIRABLE SIDE EFFECTS WHATSOEVER!

With CHV you can resolve your heart condition rapidly, says Dr. Van Fleet. In fact CHV can be your best insurance against a heart attack, claims this noted health researcher. He also states that after a heart attack this drugless remedy lessens the chance of a second or a third attack! Paul's case is a good example: .

PAUL'S HEART RESTORED! Paul had been left a cardiac cripple after two devastating heart attacks six years ago. He spent his time in bed or in a wheelchair, for the slightest exertion brought on chest pains and breathing difficulty! Only a week after CHV treatment had begun, Paul began to show improvement. Now he can do everything — he swims daily, jogs to and from the office, and plays 18 holes of golf every Thursday!

Admittedly, the usual treatment for Angina Pectoris eases the pain, but it is not a cure, maintains Dr. Van Fleet, for it does not solve the basic cause of the attack which is the fact that the heart doesn't have enough oxygen. CHV can supply that oxygen and can help the heart use it more efficiently, says Dr. Van Fleet! See how this fantastic remedy helped Glenn:

GLENN OVERCOMES ANGINA! Glenn O., 55, was confined to a wheelchair with Angina Pectoris. Even a short conversation made him feel as if he'd been stabbed in the armpit with a sharp knife that was being twisted around! Shortly after using this miracle healing secret, CHV, the pains stoped, and a short while after that he got out of his wheelchair. Glenn has been free from angina pains now for seven years!

OTHERS TESTIFY TO CHV HEALING POWER!

- Sam N's painful, recurring kidney stones were dissolved with this extraordinary CHV treatment!
- Willis N. avoided surgery by using a soothing CHV ointment on his badly burned hand which prevented permanent scarring and disfigurement, miraculously!
- Nancy N., given only two months to live with deadly kidney disease, improved immediately after using CHV, and now her kidneys function properly and her health is regained!
- Dorothy J. took an easily prepared CHV drink. She cured her stomach ulcer and avoided an operation that would have removed one-third of her stomach!
- Lenzer O's severe bronchial asthma was relieved in one short week through amazing CHV with no side effects!
- George K. used an invigorating CHV drink which cured his arthritis, bursitis, neuritis, anemia, and prostate gland trouble!
- Lloyd R's severe prostate condition healed rapidly and he avoided the surgery his doctor advised, thanks to the extraordinary healing power of CHV!
- A sixty-eight year old woman, who had glaucoma to had she could only distinguish between light and dark, used a CHV preparation every day and now her eyesight is greatly improved!

But the results of these and other equally startling healings revealed by Dr. Van Fleet are just the beginning! For instance, who wouldn't want:

NEW ZEST AND ZEAL FOR LIFE!

Dr. Van Fleet states unequivocally: the primary purpose of CHV is to cure the basic illness, but the end result is always increased vitality and stamina...

- You'll have more go-power — you'll be more self-confident and no longer shun business or social engagements because you don't feel up to par!
- You'll be at your peak all the time — you'll have immediate energy plus staying power!
- Your sex life can improve dramatically — patients in their 70's and 80's have rediscovered sex after they thought they were all finished! And they have the physical abilities to match their desires!

UP TO 20 ADDED HEALTHY YEARS OF LIFE!

A Nobel Prize winning biochemist makes the shocking claim that — with the help of CHV — you can increase both the length of your life and your period of health by as much as 20 years, says Dr. Van Fleet, adding that you can:

LOOK YOUNGER with healthy shining hair, smooth wrinkle-free skin, beautiful teeth firmly anchored in sound gums...even prevent baldness and replace grey hair with dark!

FEEL YOUNGER with improved eyesight, better digestion, less fatigue and...sleep soundly again!

REDISTRIBUTE WEIGHT from where you don't want it to where you want it...without tedious exercises!

SWEEP YOUR ARTERIES CLEAN of clogging fatty accumulations that...make you old before your time!

Strange premonition ended man's 30-year search for lost brother

A wife's unexplainable psychic compulsions led to the joyous reunion of two brothers who had searched for each other for 30 frustrating years.

Janet Horn says she knew only that something important was about to happen to her husband, Adrian, and that a telephone book in a strange town held the answer.

Her nagging premonition signalled the end of a sad, tragic separation that began when Adrian's mother died when he was 8 years old.

His half-brother, Karl, had grown up and joined the Army. Another half-brother, Stanley, was living away from home. A half-sister, Joyce, was sent to live with her father.

Little Adrian was adopted by a family named Horn in Charlotte, Mich. The little boy's name was changed and the court sealed the records of the adoption.

Karl later said he thought the boy was being cared for by relatives and planned to adopt Adrian when he got out of the Army. But when he was discharged he was shocked to learn that Adrian had vanished.

While Karl searched for court records and clues from his home in Jackson, Mich., little Adrian was growing up only 30 miles away.

Though he had a new family, Adrian never forgot about his real family whose last name was Klickner.

The youngster thought of his real family and cherished a photo of himself with his mother and Karl.

On Feb. 7, 1981, Adrian, now 38, and his wife were on a regular monthly trip from their home in Franklin, Wis., to Michigan.

For some strange, unexplainable reason they were drawn to spend the night in Jackson — although they didn't usually stop in that town.

Once inside their motel room, Jane suddenly and unaccountably became obsessed with finding a telephone book — but she couldn't explain why.

"She nearly tore that room apart," Adrian told The NEWS.

He said it was as if the Jackson telephone directory held some earthshakingly important news.

She couldn't find one and began to shiver uncontrollably even though it was quite warm. She finally calmed down about 4 a.m.

The next day Janet spotted a directory hanging on a chain at a public phone booth. Driven by unexplainable forces, she jerked the book open and stared at the page — it had opened in the K's.

She scanned the names. Suddenly, there it was — Karl Klickner.

"It was like it was on a 10-foot billboard, it stood out so big," she exclaimed.

With hope in his heart Adrian shakily dialed the number. Only moments after Karl, now 49, got on the line they realized their search had ended.

"He told me he had an 8-year-old brother who had been adopted," said Adrian. "I said I had been adopted when I was 8, I asked him what his brother's name was and then he said 'Adrian!' "

When they saw each other they hugged and cried and hugged some more.

And once in the house, Adrian knew he had finally come home. On the wall was a copy of that precious, faded photo he had carried with him for all those years.

"It was the realization of a lifelong dream," Adrian said. "I always had an empty place inside me and never felt like I belonged anywhere.

"Now that emptiness is gone. Finally I do have somewhere I belong."

Since then, Adrian has been reunited with his half-sister, other half-brother and about 25 relatives he didn't know he had.

"They never stopped thinking about me and hoping they'd find me some day," he said happily.

Couple's twins, triplets beat billion-to-one odds

John and Debbie Drake are the billion-to-one parents.

Nearly five years to the day after their identical twins were born, Debbie gave birth to identical triplets.

Doctors at University of Iowa Hospitals said the chances of consecutive births of identical twin girls and identical triplet girls were a billion to one, or about once every 200 years in the United States.

John, 29, and Debbie, 23, of Bettendorf, Iowa, say they have no trouble telling the girls apart. That's Jamie on John's lap, Erica in the middle in Rochelle's arms and Jenny on Debbie's lap. Michelle is standing.

The triplets were born seven minutes apart October 6 and each weighed about four pounds. They spent a month in the hospital nursery before coming home where Mom and Dad figured if one baby is a bundle of joy, three must be — a handful. But there's plenty of love in the Drake household to go around, especially from the sisters, Rochelle and

This is what my unique vitamin formula has done for my hair at 43...

Why not find out what it can do for yours... by accepting the first full month's supply of it, as my FREE gift to you!

You See, If You Have Problem Hair, Read This— At 43, I Have To Cut 2 Inches Off My Hair Every Two Months. Otherwise, It Might Very Well Grow Right Down Past My Waist.

And not only have I developed a special Hair Vitamin formula that helps make it that way, but I'd like to give you your first full month's supply as my Free Gift.

The full details are below . . .

I've included this absolutely unretouched photograph of my own hair, taken when I was 43 years and 13 days old. I had that hair photographed from every angle, so you could see almost every strand of that hair clearly.

Now I'd like you to look at this unretouched photograph carefully—so carefully that if you have a magnifying glass handy, use it too. And ask yourself these three questions:

1. Is my hair the lifeless, brittle, thinning hair you'd expect in a 43-year-old woman? Especially a 43-year-old woman who is just too busy to eat the proper diet she should, every day.

2. Does that hair have the kind of shine, the kind of thickness, the kind of life and strength you'd like your own hair to have today—no matter what your age?

3. And now study the length of that hair. Realize that it would grow down past my waist, if I didn't cut two inches off it every two months. Far too many 22-year olds can't get this kind of growth, because they don't know how to give their hair this kind of vitality. And if you're willing to spend one short month—at my risk, and not yours—to see if my vitamins can help your hair look like mine . . . grow like mine . . . shine like mine—despite the fact that you, too, may be too busy to feed your body, and your hair, the absolutely proper nutrition it should have—then just read on.

Meet the woman who is giving you this $8.98 FREE Gift...

OLEDA BAKER—President of Oleda Unlimited, Inc.—has been in the beauty business—although it's hard to believe—for a full 27 years. She first served as a high-fashion model in New York City, where she learned all the beauty tricks of the trade. Thereafter, she became an authoress—writing beauty books for the country's leading publishers.

And To Prove The Power Of These Facts, I Have To Tell You Just A Little More About My Own Hair Right Now . . .

First of all, because of my photographic assignments, I now keep my hair exactly 21 inches long. And it's still so thick and so strong that I can hardly force a comb through it. And it has so much life and shine that, when I did a TV commercial for a leading hair company, the producer asked me if the staff to lightly put face-powder on it, so it wouldn't blind the camera.

Second, and even more important, even at 43, beauty is my business. I sell the way I look, as a model and as a beauty expert. And as I myself grow older and older, more and more women begin to believe my essential message—that you can help make yourself beautiful, and keep yourself beautiful, despite any number of years! And you can do that despite the fact that you're so much "on the run"—whether as housewife, mother, or working woman, or all three—that you don't have time to give yourself the "Full Power" nutrition you'd like your diet to have, every single day.

Nowhere, but nowhere, does this "Make-Good Nutrition" hold more true than with your hair. For you must realize that I have been a vitamin-preserve blond for over 20 years—that I both bleach and color my hair—that I often don't stop, day after day, for a proper dinner or lunch—and my hair STILL looks like this.

So Let Me Put It As Bluntly As This—

It took me 20 years to find out how to make my hair thicker, stronger, and therefore, longer. With such dazzling life and shine that my man can't keep his hands off it. And I'd like to share my Number One Secret with you—prove that Number One Secret to you—without your risking a penny.

What I learned can be boiled down as simply as this. I found that the best "Make-Good" Hair Treatment in the world—far better than anything I could conceivably PUT on that hair—is the proper blend of vitamins and minerals. For one very simple reason.

That no matter how much money I spend for a shampoo or conditioner or thickener to put ON my hair . . . no matter how many vitamins, or hormones, or enzymes, or other strengtheners or other nutrients it may have—my hair still can't digest. Only my stomach can. And therefore the only way I can feed my scalp and my hair—really feed that scalp and hair—is through my mouth.

And not only does your hair need so many more vitamins and minerals as it gets older, but that the ordinary, over-processed, over-cooked foods you buy give you so incredibly little of these precious nutrients.

And certain foods you eat, and certain beverages you drink, actually destroy the vital B-complex vitamins that are so crucial for the nutrition of your hair. So if your hair is aging, and fading, as fast, or even faster, than your mother's—don't blame heredity. Blame the old-fashioned way you feed it strength.

And, worst of all, if you work too hard, as I do, and eat the wrong kinds of food, as I do, and neglect your diet, as I do, then these hair vitamins may be the best beauty investment of your life.

When I think of the mistakes I made through sheer ignorance—that literally speeded up the weakening of my hair—why, I could almost cry. And I must share with you now, my unique way to help stop what I call "vitamin-deficiency premature-aging of your hair."

Vitamin and mineral supplements are the answer, of course. But the question was, and is, which ones? I still shudder when I think of my bathroom shelf in the early days. It was lined with bottles,

Sometimes I Would Take 15 Or 20 Pills Each Day, Just To Get The Full List Of Nutrients That I Needed To Do The Job.

And then I started thinking about a new, combined "Hair Vitamin" that contained all the ingredients that I simply felt that I couldn't afford to let my hair live without . . . and that any other woman who was far too busy to pay the proper attention to her diet just couldn't afford to let her hair live without.

These are vitamins that are essential for the health and strength of your entire body, including your hair . . . plus vitamins that help produce a supply of rich nourishing blood to your entire body, including your hair . . . plus minerals and even "trace elements," felt necessary by nutritionists and researchers to be essential to a sound, healthy body, including your hair.

And when I tracked down all these vitamins, and minerals, and trace elements, and added them to my formula, my hair took on such a radiance and glow—that even at age 43—photos of me appear in newspapers and magazines all over America . . . ten full years after the models I'd started out working with had completely disappeared from sight.

And Your First Month's Supply Is My FREE Gift.

You see, my special Hair Vitamins cost $8.98 for a 30-day supply . . . far less than the price I had to pay, and you'd have to pay, if you bought them separately. But if you send me your check for them now, I'll send you—not just a one-month's supply—but TWO bottles, containing TWO one-month supplies.

What I want you to do is this: Take one of the jars, open it, and try it. Put the other one aside.

Then take them for that first month. And if you don't see the results that delight you, in that very first month alone, then simply take the second jar, and send that SECOND jar back to me, and I'll send back every penny of your money.

So if you don't like them, the first jar is yours free. And if you do like them, that first jar is still yours free. So you've got absolutely nothing to lose—and so very, very much to gain.

MEN! EVERYTHING I SAY HERE APPLIES TO YOU! PLUS ONE BIG EXTRA BONUS—

If you have falling or thinning hair, then you must be told this: If your hair loss is not due to hereditary causes, but is directly attributable to vitamin deficiencies . . . then that very same hair may literally THRIVE when those vitamin deficiencies are finally remedied!

Why not try this FREE Gift Offer—entirely at my risk!

'Clowns for Christ' groups claim their humor helps explain gospels

Churches, trying to get their messages through to modern-day Americans, are reaching centuries back into religious history — and using clowns to preach the gospel.

And there are 3,000 such clown ministry groups active in the country today.

The religious clowns say they are space age versions of their counterparts in the medieval church who were used to illustrate points made by the preacher.

Today church clowns call themselves "fools for Christ" and say St. Paul in a message to the Corinthians urged them to become "fools for Christ's sake" because God has made "foolish the wisdom of the world."

"It's a very effective way to spread the Word because people have to listen with their hearts instead of their ears," says Robert McKenzie of St. David's, Pa., who teaches clown ministry workshops.

He says the only words spoken at clown ministry performances are at the beginning when someone sets the scene for the message.

Clown ministries are found in many denominations, but the idea has really caught fire at Episcopal churches in the Philadelphia area.

In that skit a white-faced, sad-eyed clown wearing sunglasses portrays Saul. He encounters another clown, Ananias, who — in his slapstick fashion — converts the unbelieving Saul. When Saul "sees the light" his sunglasses fall off.

St. George's clowns illustrate the sermon at the 9 a.m. family service — and take their religious message on the road to shopping centers, schools and anywhere clowns are welcome.

"People will accept things from a clown that they won't from a straight person," says Anne Ward, a member of St. George's troupe.

"I'm a responsible person in the community, a seminary student and a mother. But when I put on clown makeup, I'm totally different. I don't have to be that person."

The Rev. James McKendrick, rector of St. George's, admits that all parishioners at the church aren't in favor of the clowns. Their performances are restricted to the less formal family service.

Spy agencies' help wanted ads offer a chance for excitement

If you're tired of a humdrum job, how about getting a nice government job as a spy — both the CIA and the National Security Agency (NSA) are hiring.

They are advertising in big newspapers and make no bones about the fact that they need more than a few good men and women.

"We're looking for men and women with special talent," is how a recent CIA ad started in the classified section of the Wall Street Journal.

"The primary task of the Central Intelligence Agency is to gather information to help protect international interests of the United States," says the ad. "It takes self-reliance, self-motivation, and intelligence as well as academic achievement salary $15,000-$22,000. Substantial benefits for overseas service. The Central Intelligence Agency — it's time for us to know more about each other."

Kathy Pherson, public relations worker for the CIA, says the spy agency's looking for chemists, engineers, language experts, computer experts and economists.

Asked if these applicants would be trained as spies, she declined comment.

"We need a lot of unique people," says a NSA spokesman of the openings in the agency people, engineers — all kinds of people."

He says the agency competes with electronic and computer companies for employees.

If the spy jobs aren't your cup of tea, there's always the FBI or Secret Service. Both of these agencies advertise regularly for help.

In fact, just about the only secret agency that doesn't publicly advertise for employees is one that's so secret it doesn't even admit it exists — the U.S. Reconnaissance Office. That's the outfit that operates the military's supersecret spy airplanes.

When asked if the spy plane group was hiring, an Air Force spokesman said that any answer — yes or no — would be an admission that there was a Reconnaissance Office.

Ryan O'Neal backs down from angry Sly Stallone

By KITTY MacNAB

Two-fisted loverboy Ryan O'Neal — famed for knocking shoving photographers on their lens caps — chickened out of a real-life fight with Sylvester "Rocky" Stallone.

That's what big Sly claims in an interview in Esquire magazine.

Ryan, of course, gained his fighting reputation by decking several photogs — whose arms were loaded with camera equipment — as they tried to snap the actor with his gal-pal Farrah Fawcett.

Sly is no slouch when it comes to tough. While he was never a boxer like his film alter-ego "Rocky," the beefy actor did fight his way out of "Hell's Kitchen," one of New York's meanest areas.

As a joke, Sly gave cake-eater Ryan a call and furiously challenged him to a fight.

According to Sly, pussycat Ryan wanted no part of it.

"Jeez, man — I didn't have you in mind when I said I could lick most actors," Ryan whined to Sly.

That makes Sly Tinseltown's top terror — doesn't it?

Hollywood's Mary Tyler Moore is moving to New York where she plans to live in the plush Carlyle Hotel — lovingly close to her sometime beau Warren Beatty who also lives there.

Teen sex-kitten Brooke Shields got a dream-come-true when her heartthrob John Travolta invited her out for a cozy lunch in a fancy Big Apple eatery.

European scientists announce that the use of a bee pollen formulation cream is able to make wrinkles appear less noticeable every day, leave the skin looking smoother, firmer, younger.

This is good news for every person who has felt despair because the reflection in the mirror shows older looking skin.

Why may your skin look prematurely aged? The answer is that the cells often do not obtain nourishment. A growing number of scientists agree that providing needed nourishment to the skin can, for hours at a time, bring about the look and feel of new skin.

To protect against nutritional deficiencies of the skin, many European scientists have been searching for a food or a substance that will offer important skin-feeding elements. Now, years of research and laboratory testing have been rewarded with the announcement that such a food has been found. It is known as bee pollen.

BEE POLLEN: SOURCE OF NUTRITION FOR THE SKIN

What Is It? Bee Pollen is a remarkable natural source of almost all known nutritional elements (in trace amounts) harmoniously balanced by Nature: 16 vitamins, 16 minerals, 18 enzymes, 18 proteins and amino acids and 28 assorted elements, substances needed for healthy looking skin.

CLINICAL TESTS

Bee pollen cream has been acclaimed by pharmacologists throughout Europe. In Halsingborg, Sweden, dermatologist Lars-Erik Essen, M.D., clinically tested bee pollen cream.

Nourishes Skin. Dr. Essen reported that bee pollen cream could introduce a welcome concentration of nutrients so that the skin could actually be nourished.

Dr. Essen Reports Success. Among the patients observed by Dr. Essen, the most striking effects of pollen cream were noticed on the skin of the face. The first improvements were apparent smoothening lasting for hours.

WHY NUTRIENTS ARE NEEDED FOR YOUNGER LOOKING SKIN

A prominent New York physician, Louis Mucelli, M.D., recognizes the values of nutrients for better looking skin. Says Dr. Mucelli, "Nutritional research has, of course, long ago established the inseparable connection between proper vitamin balance and optimum health.

"It follows that vitamins 'fed' directly to the skin through the absorption of vitamin-enriched creams and lotions can achieve profound benefits."

For the cream to be effective, its nutritive treasures need to be preserved. A "cold process" developed in England prepares bee pollen cream with virtually no loss of nutritional values. It is this same English "cold process" bee pollen cream which is recommended by Louis Mucelli, M.D.

Pollen Cream Is Important. Based on its nourishing ability for the skin, bee pollen cream has become widely accepted in Europe for its beautifying effect on complexion among skin doctors, as well as the thousands of women who enthusiastically endorse it.

RUB THE LOOK OF YOUTH INTO YOUR SKIN

Penetration Of Skin Is Important. When all of the nutrients are in a cream, the effect of bee pollen is enhanced. You massage this skin-nutrition formula into the skin of your face and neck before going to bed. While you sleep, it sinks deep down into the layers of your skin. In this combination supplied by Nature, the nutrients help your skin look and feel younger and more beautiful.

Wrap-Up: For skin to retain its optimal look of health and youth, it needs more than moisture. It needs nutrition. That is why many are feeding their skins with a bee pollen cream. The benefits of the bee have been demonstrated in pollen tablets. Now, those benefits have been extended into a cream. Let this natural food from the beehive bring its benefits to your skin. ☐

Other bee pollen creams sell for up to $40 an ounce. Bee Pollen from England™ Skin-Nutrition Cream, made by a special "cold temperature process" is available in health food stores like General Nutrition Centers for only $12 for two ounces.

Female 'firsts' who helped make American history

A woman ran for president in 1872, more than 100 years ago — and the first Miss America, a high school sophomore, was later so poor she melted down her trophy for its silver content.

These facts, and more than 180 others about women who have earned a special place in American history, are included in a fascinating new book, "First of All: Significant Firsts by American Women" by Joan McCullough (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $5.95 paperback).

Among the other tidbits uncovered by the author are:

• The first woman tested as an astronaut candidate was Jerrie Cobb, a 29-year-old pilot from Oklahoma.

She scored so high in secret tests — with some scores surpassing John Glenn — that other women were tested, too.

And when four broke high marks on physical and mental suitability for the rigors of work in space, NASA was so embarrassed it shelved all testing on women and later admitted it had no intention of sending them into space.

Jerrie's tests were completed in 1960, but the first female candidates to go into training weren't named until 1978.

• The first Miss America was 16-year-old Margaret Gorman, a 10th grader from Washington, D.C.

Though her measurements were a slight 30-25-32, she beat out the seven other contestants in the 1921 beauty pageant.

During the Depression, she and her husband were so poor she melted down at least one trophy to help meet household expenses.

• The first — and only — daredevil ever to tumble over the treacherous peak of the Niagara Falls in a barrel and survive was Annie Edson Taylor, a 43-year-old schoolteacher from Bay City, Mich.

Annie went over the highest crest of the falls in 1901. Harnesses designed to support her body inside the 4½-foot-high barrel failed and she was slammed against the sides time after time.

Despite her daring deed that made headlines around the world, Annie died a penniless and nearly blind woman selling autographed postcards to tourists.

• The first female horseback rider to make a coast-to-coast ride was Nan Jane Aspinwall.

Astride her mare, she rode 3,000 miles from San Francisco, Calif., to New York in 301 days, arriving at the steps of City Hall on July 8, 1911.

• The first female Cabinet member was Frances Perkins, appointed Secretary of Labor by Franklin Roosevelt in 1933.

• The first female soldier joined the U.S. Army in 1782 by passing for a young boy.

Deborah Sampson put on men's clothes, called herself Robert Shurtleff and was commended for outstanding performance.

She once removed a musket ball from her thigh with a penknife because she didn't want a doctor to discover her true identity.

• The first woman to anchor a nightly news program was Dorothy Fuldheim, who stepped in front of the cameras at WEWS-TV in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1947 and is still doing daily commentaries.

• Much more fanfare accompanied the announcement of the first woman to anchor national network news.

Barbara Walters became the highest paid TV news personality in history when she signed a five-year contract with ABC in 1976 for $1 million a year.

Margaret Gorman was 16 years old when she won the first Miss America contest. Her 30-25-32

Teen jailed for stealing 75¢

A teenager who stole 75 cents has been sentenced to five years in prison by a Texas jury.

The Dallas jury found Patrick Dewayne Young guilty of aggravated robbery by taking 75 cents from an automobile mechanic.

It rejected a plea from Young's attorney to grant the youth probation because of his age.

Young was found guilty of robbing the mechanic with a pistol last September in an apparent attempt to steal the man's car.

Young fired a shot from his pistol but then ran away without the car — though he did take the money that fell from his victim's pocket in the confusion.

Prosecutor Greg David had sought a 20-year sentence, claiming that Young was a threat to society.

The jury foreman said his panel had considered probation but added: "We felt the charge was serious enough that it deserved some incarceration."

It's a super pig!

Hogging the limelight at Chicago's Brookfield Zoo recently was Lassie — a pig that is more than a little sweaty about her accomplishments.

With the assistance of her trainer, Sue Kozoyed, Lassie has mastered quite a few tricks — like leaping barrels and hurdles with a single bound, opening doors and, in general, showing off.

Lassie starts her show at the zoo by pulling down a scroll that bills her, "Lassie Is Some Pig." From then on she demonstrates skills that would put television's Miss Piggy to shame. She even lifts weights.

The talented pig has made her home at the zoo since she was two weeks old and, according to zoo experts, she exhibits intelligence and athletic prowess that is rarely found in pigs.

The day of the gun

Anxious Americans arm to meet a fearful future

By WILLIAM WALKER

They're not part of an army of war-hating fanatics, but everyday people determined to survive the frightening aftermath of nuclear attack, race wars or total social collapse.

These people are stockpiling arms and food, planning ahead for the dog-eat-dog era when brotherhood is dead and it's every man for himself.

They are known by many names — reitreatists, futurists, survivalists, and they come from all walks of life.

Today entire families are marching to the timebomb tick of imminent world disaster.

They shell out vacation savings for high-powered assault weapons, and spend weekends in remote "boot camps" where they learn how to kill.

Bankers and mechanics are sharing bullet-raked foxholes, and young mothers garbed in army fatigues cradle an infant in one arm, a semi-automatic rifle in the other.

In Atlanta, Ga., Vietnam veterans have formed heavily armed "security patrols" to do what police have failed to do — protect their children from the fiend who has taken 30 lives.

In the quiet, rolling hills beyond Louisville, Ky., members of the Christian-Patriots Defense League tote Bibles and assault rifles preparing for the anarchy and revolution they are certain is to come.

Across the land, in misty mountain valleys, rock-ringed deserts and on sun-washed beaches, armed and angry Americans are ready to kill to survive — even their neighbors — when doomsday comes.

"The time is soon coming when I'll have to fight to protect what's mine," survivalist Clint Westock told The NEWS.

"It's not the kind of thing I'm happy to talk about. But it's probably the only way me and my family will survive the chaos of a nuclear attack or some other national disaster.

"There was a time when I'd be the last person on earth to turn someone away — my neighbor or a stranger. But now, I wouldn't hesitate to kill to protect my family."

He learned survival skills in Vietnam, owns 14 rifles and pistols and is teaching his wife Patsy how to handle a rifle.

Cloaked in secrecy, they provide expert training in weaponry, hand-to-hand combat, defensive tactics and how to stockpile and cook emergency rations.

Harold Van Wert has been a survivalist since the Cuban missile crisis and is putting the finishing touches on a bomb shelter he started two years ago.

He also operates Harold's American Survival School in a secluded forest glen near Dallas, Ga.

"The communists are everywhere and they're going to crush us," Van Wert told The NEWS.

"Survivalists are not religious nuts or kooks. They're really concerned about what would happen if we were hit with a nuclear attack or some other kind of national disaster."

Van Wert is convinced that only those who are prepared will survive the unholy aftermath — and they must be prepared to kill if necessary to protect what's theirs.

"They will have to be ready to kill," he explained. "It's not your neighbor — the nice guy down the street — it's someone who wants what you have and is prepared to kill you to get it.

"It isn't a nice thought. But if you have stored up a year's supply of food, the guy who doesn't have any will try to get yours. That's called survival."

Many Americans fear war in the streets and believe that terror can only be defeated by a strong man with a gun.

A new type of arms race is sweeping the nation — its soldiers are women and the enemy their would-be attackers.

But, thanks to people like Dave Stanley, a retired police chief who is teaching women how to use a gun, those once paralyzed by fear can sleep at night.

"The people who come to me for this course are nice people, really nice," says the Paducah, Ky., instructor. "They're just scared."

With national figures showing a burglary is committed every 10 seconds and a rape every seven minutes, it is little wonder women are arming themselves.

Like their menfolk they also fear the aftermath of a major national disaster.

"I sleep with a gun next to my bed all the time," says Stanley's wife Kay who learned how to shoot 48 years ago.

"With a gun by my side, I feel as if I'm in charge."

Stanley's students range in age from the very young to the very old. Many are single, most are married. They are bankers' and doctors' wives, waitresses and nurses.

All feel vulnerable to weirdos bellbent on harming them.

"I teach them tactics, not just how to shoot," Stanley told The NEWS. "There is a lot more to it."

Student Vicki Powell and Dave Stanley check the man-shaped targets on Stanley's private pistol range. A retired police chief, Stanley began teaching frightened women to shoot several years ago. He has now tutored nearly 100.

Stanley starts with a safety talk. I tell them, 'You've got to decide now, if you've a gun, you've got to use it or you'll be killed.

"'Someone who enters your bedroom and sees you with a gun expects you to use it. If he can get over to you and grab the gun, he's gonna kill you.

"'They'd rather kill you than have you around to testify against them.'

"'You just can't worry about shooting one of these creeps. It's two or three times, and under the persistent offender laws, if they go back, they're going back for life.

It also deals with strategy.

"Always sleep with three things by your side," he says, "a gun, a phone, and a light.

"If you hear a noise, call police. Turn on the light to tell them you're armed and point the gun at the door — and be prepared to shoot.

"If you shoot and make a hit, shoot again to make sure. The object isn't to kill, it's to stop them."

More than 100 women have armed themselves against fear in classes run by Stanley.

Each session costs $15 an hour and includes instruction on how to load, clean and fire a gun.

Arctic death ship remains baffling seagoing mystery

By ROB ROBBINS

On the morning of Aug. 12, 1775, Captain Warren of the Yankee whaling ship "Herald" put down his spyglass and turned to his first mate. "I don't like the looks of her," he said. "She's seen hard seas and I'd swear there's no one aboard."

They were cruising off the west coast of Greenland, well above the Arctic Circle. Ahead of them the huge three-masted schooner was drifting through the icebergs, like a ghost ship.

Their shouts to the ship brought no answer. Warren took eight men and a longboat and they rowed to the ship.

The ship was encrusted with ice but they could make out its name: "Octavius."

Warren and four sailors went aboard. The decks lay ankle-deep in moss. They picked their way through it cautiously, not surprised to find no one on deck.

But below decks there was evidence of what had been human life. "Oh, my God!" Warren whispered.

There were 28 men in the crew's quarters, all heavily bundled in their bunks. And all dead.

They fumbled their way aft to the captain's cabin, where the nightmare continued. The master of the Octavius slumped over the ship's log, a pen close to his right hand as if he had dozed at work.

On a bed against one wall of the cabin, a lovely blonde woman lay frozen to death under piles of blankets. And in a corner of the room there were a sailor and a small boy whose bodies told a tragic story.

The sailor sat with his futile flint and steel clutched in frozen hands. In front of him was a tiny heap of shavings, silent evidence of a fire that had failed to ignite.

The little boy crouched close to him, his face buried in the seaman's jacket as if he had huddled there in pathetic search for warmth.

Afterwards they climbed the rickety companionway, taking with them only the schooner's log book as proof of what they'd found.

Aboard the whaler, they could only watch helplessly while the derelict schooner drifted away from them among the icebergs — never to be seen again.

It was well they had taken the log book. The world would not be ready to accept their story, which remains one of the strangest tales of the sea.

The last log entry was dated Nov. 11, 1762. The dying captain wrote that the Octavius had been frozen in for 17 days. The fire had gone out and they couldn't restart it.

The location of the ship at this time, said the captain, was Longitude 180 W. Latitude 76 N.

Captain Warren looked at the charts in disbelief.

In those last hours of human life, the ship had been locked in the Arctic Ocean north of Point Barrow, Alaska — thousands of miles from where the whaler had found her.

Guided either by the winds or some unknown force, year after year the battered schooner had crept steadily eastward through the vast ice fields until she entered the North Atlantic.

And in doing so she had then realized the dream of all mariners.

For untold centuries men had sought the legendary Northwest Passage — a navigable route around the Arctic Ocean between the Atlantic and the Pacific.

But on that historic 13-year voyage, the ghostly Octavius with her crew of frozen dead had been the first to find it.

Motorcycle mutt

Silver-suited creature terrifies town

Cops are investigating reports of a strange, unearthly being wearing a silver space suit that is terrifying residents of a suburban area.

A sheriff's dispatcher, Fred Barnes of Lumberton, N.C., says a half-dozen sober, responsible citizens had reported seeing the creature.

He says other reports told of a strange light in the sky prior to the sightings of the silver being.

Some citizens say the creature was seen near a wooded area that has been the site of strange, unexplainable events. Nearby residents say they frequently hear unearthly whirring noises coming from the woods.

Others report hearing loud conversations in a language that is definitely not English.

Another citizen has complained that a silver being and her husband were watching television in their home when they heard a noise in their backyard.

When the husband went out to investigate, he saw a shining, silver man-like creature racing into the darkness.

Upon investigation he found that the creature had pulled a fence post out of the ground.

Bigfoot trackers discover footprints & hair of beast

The find was made in China's Hubei Province — the center of a government-directed search to capture one of the huge, hairy ape-men that have terrorized peasants in the area.

Researchers said the footprints indicate the Bigfoot walks erect like a man. The hair closely resembles human hair and the droppings indicate the huge beast is a vegetarian — and not a meat eater.

The search covers an area where in 1967 one of the big beasts was caught, killed and dismembered by Nationalist Chinese soldiers.

Eerie light haunts military school

The unexplainable light was first seen by students Robert Gerstka and Bruce Harding in their room at The Citadel in Charleston, S.C.

When Robert and Bruce told officials of the light, Lt. Col. Richard Clark of the school's staff went to the room and personally witnessed the appearance of the light.

Bewildered, he asked physics department experts to study the mysterious light. Meanwhile, he says, the [illegible] will be given another room.

Pilot swerves to miss a UFO

Gary Rounds, pilot of the private plane, was practicing takeoffs and landings when he and Charles Shackleford saw the UFO heading straight at them.

Gary quickly dived his craft to miss the object — a saucer about 50 feet in diameter emitting a bright, red pulsating light.

"It was really wild," says Charles. "First it was in front of us. The next thing we know it was right behind us."

Air controller Rich Gutierrez says he saw the UFO head right into the path of the airplane. Only Gary's quick evasive action prevented a midair crash, he says.

Amazingly, the object did not show up on radar.

Ghost of priest & dog patrol road

Investigators in El Paso, Tex., say the apparition is known as the Trans Mountain Ghost and is named after a highway cut across nearby rugged mountains.

According to legend, Spanish priests operated a gold mine in the area in the 1600s. During an Indian uprising, a priest and his dog were left to guard the mine and were killed.

Before the road was built, hikers frequently reported being chased by a fierce dog. On several occasions, they said, a man wearing a robe accompanied the ghostly hound.

Scientists find Ice Age mice

Scientists have discovered a species of tiny mice that miraculously survived the Ice Age and lives today!

The astounding find was made by Chinese zoologists that say four such mice have been found in a remote, mountainous area of that country. The mice are officially called hole-studied climbing mice because of two tiny holes in the front of their skulls.

Ice bomb barely misses man's home

Kenneth says the big, rounded missile narrowly missed his Birmingham, England, home. He preserved the ice in the refrigerator and turned it over to Birmingham University scientists for study.

'Mrs. Noah' ignores pain of deadly cancer to care for 83 homeless animals

Feisty Carmella Westcott is bravely ignoring the fear and pain of deadly cancer — to care for 83 sick and unwanted animals.

Nicknamed "Mrs. Noah," the plucky 70-year-old Tucson, Ariz., woman spends an amazing 21 hours a day sharing her love with each of her 53 dogs and 30 cats — petting, cleaning, and cooking up hearty stews for them.

Incredibly, this modern-day Dr. Doolittle has to fight the agony of deadly cancer and other painful diseases to keep up her good work.

But she claims that her pets are helping her live — even though their care leaves her only three hours a night to sleep.

"I have cancer in my bone marrow and glands," she said. "I was up all last night in pain. I only have one lung. I have a heart condition. I'm a diabetic and I have shingles.

"But taking care of my animals is just like eating . . . It's a vital part of my life. Those animals are keeping me alive."

Carmella, who has been caring for unwanted animals for the last 27 years on her 3-acre homestead, generously robs her monthly pension to buy over $300 a month in food for her animals.

But even that is not enough, so she also fashions catnip balls for sale and accepts donations from local pet lovers.

Before he was stricken by four strokes and cancer, her husband helped her convert one air conditioned and heated bedroom into a kitty corner.

An old church on their property serves as a kennel with a 50-foot run for the dogs. Knowing that she could die any day, Carmella tries to find good homes for her loves.

People who want to adopt one of her pets have to pass an inspection of their home and a rigorous 10-question test before Carmella will give it up.

If the new owners don't get along with their pet, they can bring it back.

Despite her sickly condition and pain and the tremendous cost to her in time and money, this tenderhearted woman refuses to take any credit for her work.

Instead, she insists that she is just paying back animals for the agony they are going through to perhaps help her.

"Day after day, animals are suffering and dying in laboratories as part of scientific experiments which are searching for cures to my medical problems," she said.

"I can't help those animals, but I can do something about the ones outside those labs who are suffering and in need.

"That's why I keep doing it."

—by Andy Carter
Special to Pictorial Press

From this moment on, forget everything you've ever read or been told about improving your bowling skill and enjoyment—because almost overnight you can add 20 to 40 pins to your average.

Sound impossible?

Well, it's not!

Let me explain.

Quite by accident I stumbled onto the real method of bowling success—and I improved my own bowling average by 32 pins.

And, I'm going to ask you to send me 10 dollars for that method, even though it's only a few minutes worth of reading material. I hope to make it so appealing that you'd be crazy not to do it.

What difference does it make if it takes you only a few minutes to learn the method—if it works?

And suppose, I'm so sure that my bowling improvement method will work for YOU too—that I'll make you an ironclad, no-risk guarantee! Here is that guarantee.

My personal method MUST improve your three-game average by at least 20 pins—or send it back. Your money will be returned that very day. I'll even return the money it cost to return the method.

Sorry, but I can't send my personal method and bill you later, or send it C.O.D. That takes too much bookkeeping and it's a bother. And anyway, I'm about to give you what you've been searching for—a foolproof, easy way to get more strikes and pick up every spare that's absolutely guaranteed to work or your money back without quibble or question.

Frankly I'm not sure of the technical reasons that my bowling improvement method works so well—it just does. It's a simple, new way to "smarten up" your technique.

I'm the living, breathing proof that my personal method works. It works for women, too. A friend of my wife's who bowls in the local women's league tried my plan and brought up her average from 138 to 164.

Now that may seem like a boast, but I want to assure you that sending me 10 dollars for my personal method is the smartest thing you've ever done.

Because, if you are anything like I used to be—you are being robbed of the real pleasures of bowling.

Just imagine how much more fun bowling would be if you almost always hit the 1-3 pocket—if you picked up the 7-10 split more than half the time—if you hardly ever had an open frame—if your average soared 20-40 pins.

My personal method will do all this for you—and more—or it won't cost you a single penny. Fair? But now back to me.

For years I struggled to improve my average. I tried everything I could—practiced two or three times a week (when I could afford it)—bought expensive shoes and even my own personal bowling ball. None of these helped me one bit.

Then I discovered my personal method of bowling improvement—the real "secret" that improved my average 32 pins. And, it's consistent.

I did better than I ever thought possible—improved more in just a couple of weeks than I had in years than two years.

It's a real pleasure to go bowling now—to have the third-highest average in our local league—to be the pocket hero on my team—never to choke up under pressure—to have the regular thrill of getting at least one turkey every time I bowl—to have the fun of knowing that I'm a really good (but not great) bowler!

And I'll show you just how I did it—in a report I call "The Andy Carter Bowling Improvement Method"—a personal method that I've shared with only a few close friends till now.

When YOU follow my simple, easy-to-understand, easy-to-follow method, I'll guarantee that your average will soar just as mine did or your money back.

I feel certain it makes no difference whether you are a man or a woman (it works for both)—whether you are young or old—whether you've taken lessons or not—MY METHOD WILL WORK or it won't cost you a single penny.

There is only one way to see if I'm right—to get your guaranteed copy of "The Andy Carter Bowling Improvement Method"—and that's to order it right now—by mail. It is not available in any store in the world.

And, you might be interested to know that it has been Registered and Copyrighted with the U.S. Government so that this personal method cannot be stolen or copied.

Furthermore, you can order without a worry in the world because you are fully protected by this ironclad guarantee. Your bowling average must improve by 20 to 40 pins OR YOUR MONEY BACK without quibble or question.

So, to get your guaranteed copy of "The Andy Carter Bowling Improvement Method" simply print the words "Better Bowling" on a plain piece of paper with your Name, Address and Zip #. Then attach your check, cash or money order for just $10 made payable to Andy Carter and send everything to me right away: Mr. Andy Carter, 123 Cross Street, Dept. AC-408, Fort Lee, New Jersey 07024.

'I think that absolute power corrupts. I really do.'

Evicted mom protests: Reagan's son used clout to get my home

The ballet-dancing son of President Reagan, Ronald Prescott, has callously used Secret Service "punch" to seize the apartment of a woman who befriended him when he was down and out.

Rena Adams, a 45-year-old mother of three, said young Ron violated a lease agreement, misled her landlord, signed a new lease on his own, and dumped her furniture in the street like so much garbage. The furniture later was moved into the basement of the building.

"When I saw my bed out in the street, it stunned me so much I couldn't function," Mrs. Adams told The NEWS. "The worst fears I had about the situation hit me all of a sudden — that I was losing my home."

And when the desperate woman wrote to First Lady Nancy Reagan for help, she received a terse note from young Ron that read, ". . . my mother doesn't need any more pen-pals."

Mrs. Adams' heartbreaking nightmare ordeal began in late 1979, when she sublet her New York City apartment to the struggling young dancer. It was an act of kindness that would soon totally disrupt her life.

"It was a short-term thing that I wanted to do for him," she explained. "He was just starting out — a struggling, young artist and I wanted to help him. My ex-husband was out of town and I was going to live with my kid in his apartment."

Later, when Ron's sweetheart Doria Palmieri moved in with him, Mrs. Adams gave him a key to her ex-husband's apartment so the hard-pressed couple could do their laundry.

Rena Adams lost her apartment to the President's son.

"But he changed drastically after his father became President," Mrs. Adams told The NEWS. "I think absolute power really corrupts. I really do."

Ron paid $450 for the one-bedroom Greenwich Village apartment until Mrs. Adams hiked it to $511 last December.

When Ron's lease expired in June 1980, Mrs. Adams allowed the couple to stay in the apartment on a month-to-month basis. In September, she asked him to plan on being out by November.

"He sent me a note and then phoned me. He was really angry," Mrs. Adams recalled. "He called me a liar — said I had promised him six months. I was astounded. I said, 'Hey! Wait a minute, if you really and truly need more time, you can have it. It will inconvenience me, but I'm not going to throw you out.' Then he got friendly with me again."

Last December, Ron sent Mrs. Adams a note indicating he would move by January 20.

"On January 16 or 17, I was worried about when he was going to be out and I went to see him. He said he had three other apartments in mind and that the Secret Service had a lot of punch and could bring pressure to bear to get him an apartment very soon. He used the term 'punch,' I told him he and Doria could stay until they secured another apartment."

But by this time, Mrs. Adams' lease had expired. When she didn't get a renewal form in the mail, she called her landlord's lawyer.

"The lawyer told me I had sublet the apartment without permission and that Ron was getting the lease because the owners liked the prestige and publicity. I asked if I could have the apartment after Ron left. The lawyer said he'd put me on a waiting list."

In February — losing her cherished home and with no one else to turn to — Mrs. Adams wrote two letters to President and Mrs. Reagan. It was after the first letter that she found her furniture in the street. The second letter brought the terse note from Ron. It read:

"Dear Rena. Your furniture is in the basement. My mother doesn't need any more pen-pals. yours truly, Ron."

"I have no ill will toward Ron," Rena said. "I just wish he would take his fury and put it into his dancing and get it off me and my family."

First Lady Nancy Reagan embraces her son, Ron, after a ballet performance at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York.

Ronnie ought to grow up and quit acting like a spoiled little prince

Ron Reagan is trying to launch a ballet career — but he'd better

I'm so mad at Pres Reagan's tippy-toed sonny Ron Jr., I could dress a herd of pigs in tights and tutus and set them loose onstage during his next performance.

It appears that America's little toe-stepping prince has used his clout as the Pres' son and his secret service bodyguards to gyp some woman out of her New York City apartment.

In case you don't know it, apartments in the Big Apple are as hard to find as Farrah Fawcett without her makeup. So if you steal a person's apartment you are throwing a very low blow.

This is exactly the kind of snotty-nosed attitude I hated about former President Nixon, the tape recorder expert.

Politicians seem to think a D.C. address puts them above everyone else.

When Pres Reagan was campaigning he went around acting like a regular guy. He was always talking about how he was going to help everyday Americans who are in so much trouble because of our messed up economy.

From the first minute he was elected, our Pres Reagan has showed that he thinks the color of his blood is blue.

First, he hob-nobs with celebrities and turns his inauguration into a cross between the Johnny Carson Show and a Las Vegas extravaganza.

Then, Queen Nancy takes on airs insisting that she be called "First Lady."

Now, our little tights-wearing Ronnie Prince Ron is rumored to be using his secret service bodyguards as his personal repossessionman to enforce his every whim.

Has the President's family gone bonkers? What's next? Will they be building a moat around the White House?

Will Nancy order posh villas built on the White House grounds for celebrity guests and uppity lawn parties?

Even worse — will Ron Jr. use his clout to get his own ballet show on prime time TV? And will they change the name of Swan Lake Ballet to Squirrel Lake in little Ronnie's honor?

Pres Reagan: You were elected to get America out of a mess — not to spoil your family.

If Ron Jr. needs a room, put him on a sofa-bed in the Oval Office.

And see to it that mortgage rates go down so the poor folks who don't have rich daddies can get the housing they desperately need and can afford.

In the wake of the "Urban Cowboy" craze, thousands of would-be country stars are flocking to take part in a nationwide talent contest.

About 300 entries a day are pouring into the Beaumont, Tex., office of country legend Ray Price, the sponsor of the contest.

The rewards are something to sing about. The first prize is $50,000, a recording contract and a national record release on Dimension Records.

The lucky — and talented — winner will also sign a contract with Nashville's Shorty Lavender Talent Agency.

"I really think my Country Starsearch '81 is going to be the best thing to hit country music since guitar picks," Ray Price told The NEWS.

"In addition to the main prize, other local, state and national prizes will be awarded."

Local contestants will compete for the right to move to the state finals, and 10 state finalists will be videotaped for screening by national record companies.

National finals will be held October 7, 8 and 9 in Nashville, Tenn., and 10 national finalists will appear on a TV special with Ray.

Asked why he launched his talent hunt, Ray said: "Hank Williams helped me get my start in the Grand Ole Opry, and helping other people get started in country music is something I've always wanted to do.

"I am proud to discover talented country performers in their own hometowns and give them a chance to be the next country superstar."

Ray's successes include 10 gold records, 13 awards from the Billboard Magazine, seven awards from Record World, three Cashbox awards and a Grammy award for "For the Good Times" in 1971.

He also won the Country Music Association 1971 album of the year award for "I Won't Mention It Again." Discovering talented unknown performers isn't new for Ray.

Former members of his band include stars like Willie Nelson, Roger Miller and Johnny Paycheck. Bill Starnes, who directs the talent contest organization from Beaumont, Tex., said response to the Starsearch has been tremendous.

The Starsearch contestants may enter in singer, duet, trio, quartet, instrumentalist and country or Bluegrass band category.

Information on Starsearch may be obtained by contacting participating local country music radio stations, or by writing to:

A huge 18-wheel tractor-trailer rig ricocheted down a busy interstate, slammed into eight cars, injuring four people and finally crashed through a roadblock.

And when the truck finally stopped, police found a 12-year-old boy at the wheel.

"I don't know how he figured out how to get the thing going and then how to shift the gears, but he did," said police Lt. Robert E. Sawyer.

"He could make it go — he just couldn't make it stop."

The police, tipped by motorists who reported what they believed to be a drunk driver, chased the boy for seven minutes on I-240 near Memphis, Tenn., before the huge rig was forcibly brought to a halt at the roadblock.

The films of Nancy Reagan

As Nancy Davis, Ronald Reagan's wife-to-be made a few highly unmemorable films in the 1940s, and her career ground to a halt after she married the future President in 1952.

Nancy's first stage appearance was in "Ramshackle Inn" with Zasu Pitts, and when she appeared in a TV version of the play MGM offered her a contract.

In Hollywood Clark Gable wined and dined her, and she made her first film in 1950, "The Next Voice You Hear" with James Whitmore.

When the movie played New York's Radio City Music Hall, she took a picture of her name in the marquee lights, commenting: "I'll probably never see that again."

She was right.

On March 4, 1952, she married an actor named Ronald Reagan and in the years that followed devoted less and less time to movie making, and more to rearing her young family. By 1960 she was a full-time wife and mother.

Nancy Reagan as she looked in 1950, top, and with James Whitmore in "Shadow in the Sky," a domestic drama made in 1951.

Nancy got a chance to appear with her husband in "Hellcats of the Navy" made in 1957. Ronnie went on to make other movies, but his wife's career was drawing to a close as she concentrated on home and family.

Nancy took some time off from filming a 1951 potboiler,

Deadly diseases are revealed by an amazing writing test, says expert

Your signature can reveal if you have — or will get — cancer, leukemia, heart or kidney disease, or any of the deadly afflictions known to medical science!

That is the startling claim of experts who say a mere glimpse at a person's handwriting will also spell out his or her entire medical history.

"We can also diagnose brain tumors, spinal injuries and lung disease — even toothaches and headaches," handwriting expert Robert Larsen told The NEWS.

"In the 10 years we've been doing this research, we have had a 95 to 97 percent rate of accuracy."

Larsen, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is one of about 30 handwriting experts now scattered around the nation who have been devotedly researching the incredible diagnostic technique that will give medical science a new tool in the early treatment of killing or crippling diseases.

The handwriting diagnosis applies the theory that every illness, injury or even emotional trauma creates permanent distortions in the central nervous system which show up in revealing clarity in the way a person writes. Another handwriting expert, an Easton, Pa., electronics technician, Bill Burke, has carried on his independent research for almost two decades.

"A person who has had four or five biopsies will dot the letter 'i' or make a period as though he were using a drill," he declared. "A person with spinal trouble will make a small 't' and, on the downstroke, can't stay on the stem. Handwriting can even show a change in blood pressure that results from the lighting of a cigarette. It could be a revolutionary diagnostic tool if the American Medical Association would only accept it as something more than magic."

Burke's research has been frustrated because he can't get doctors to accept handwriting analysis as a valid diagnostic technique.

"Doctors will hear me out a bit," he said. "But then they'll say, 'That's interesting,' and walk away. They think I'm some sort of fortune teller."

But Larsen has had some degree of acceptance by doctors and has worked closely with a now-retired Cedar Rapids surgeon, using his patient's handwriting to verify the surgeon's own diagnosis.

"We get the patient's permission first," Larsen explained to The NEWS. "After we make our diagnosis from a handwriting sample, it's turned over to the doctor, never directly to the patient.

"We know of at least one life that was saved through handwriting analysis. A man was scheduled for gall bladder surgery. We found that he had a weak spot in an artery that could have ruptured during surgery and killed him.

"The surgeon was able to find and repair the artery and then carry out the gall bladder operation successfully. The handwriting diagnosis has probably saved the man's life."

Larsen also works with attorneys in verifying documents and uncovering forgeries, using the same techniques applied in diagnosing medical ailments.

"Let's say a person has had some kidney damage," he explained. "It will show up in that person's handwriting sample. But it won't be there if it was written by someone else."

Although the AMA doesn't recognize the handwriting technique, Larsen said more and more younger physicians are accepting the technique as a valid diagnostic tool.

"We have to move slowly," he said. "Medical science demands strong documentation."

Boy, 7, locked up 25 years for stealing a few coins from church

George Taylor was only 7 years old when he was arrested for stealing a few coins from a church collection plate — and, incredibly, he spent the next 25 years of his life paying for that "crime" in mental institutions.

By DICK DONOVAN

And the shy, soft-spoken Pacific, Mo., boy came within hours of having his brain cut open by state doctors who thought he was mentally deranged.

"It was a dirty, rotten deal he got when he was just a little boy," his father, George Sr., told The NEWS. "They never proved anything and yet they locked him away for all those years.

"My boy always kept his faith in God and he always prayed that someday he would be with us again. Now he is and it is one of those great big miracles that did it."

Now 32 and reunited with his loving and devoted family, George harbors no bitterness toward the heartless state officials who robbed him of his youth.

"I feel good — 100 percent good," George said. "It's so good to see my parents and my brothers and sisters. I just feel wonderful."

After George was arrested 25 years ago, the theft charges were dropped. But he was sent to a juvenile home on the excuse that he was neglected at home.

He spent five lonely years in the St. Louis State School and Hospital before he was transferred to the Fulton State Hospital where he was declared mentally retarded.

For almost 18 frightening years, George was kept locked away from society, watching the years that should have been his fun-filled childhood slip slowly away.

His parents visited him as often as possible, but the meetings were all too brief.

And finally, in 1979, Missouri passed a law making it illegal to confine people against their will simply because they are retarded.

But George was quickly reclassified as psychotic and scheduled for a lobotomy, an operation that treats psychosis by slicing into the front of the brain.

He was spared that incredible ordeal when the hospital discontinued that surgical procedure.

"I prayed to God and asked him to make me well, to make me a better man," George said. "I told my mom that God would get the dumbness out of me and make me a 10 better human being."

As if answering George's prayers for help, the Legal Aid Society stepped in to help George.

Legal Aid attorney William A. Hyde then confronted hospital officials and demanded that George be released.

"They tried to say he was mentally ill and dangerous," Hyde said. "We proved both of those claims were wrong."

A few weeks ago, St. Louis Probate Judge Louis M. Kohn ruled that George was not mentally ill and ordered his immediate release.

Six die in curse of Class of '79

A tragic curse is stalking members of a 1979 high school class — in the last two years six teens have died violently in auto crashes.

"I wish it could be explained," said Roseann Romanello, now a college sophomore.

"I don't believe in hexes or curses but it's very coincidental that it happened to so many and they were all killed in cars.

"I'm scared and I think about it all the time. It's horrible to see your friends dying off one by one. It's a shock."

The killer curse first struck on April 7, 1979, just before the class of '79 was to graduate.

The class graduated and memory of Marietta's death dimmed — then fate struck again.

On March 1, 1980, Thomas Assong and John Hatzidakis were killed when the car in which they were riding was hit broadside by a speeding car.

And about five months later, Steven DePinto, who had joined the Marine Corps, was home on leave visiting his family and friends.

On Aug. 10, 1980, Steven's car struck a tree and burst into flames. The other five people with him escaped but the young Marine corporal became the fourth victim of the curse.

The next to die was Scott Wallace who was killed Feb. 26, 1981, while riding in a friend's car.

The most recent — and the sixth — victim of the curse was Gary Walsh who was killed March 8 when a van he was riding in struck a telephone pole.

The American Council of Life Insurance says statistically only one teen out of every 1,000 in the 15- 19-year-old age group will die violently.

The six deaths among the 700 members of Deer Park High's class of 1979 fly in the face of logic.

"I hope it's not some kind of curse," said Joyce Hawk who knew all of the victims. "It's so strange that they were all killed.

"I just try not to think about it. It's too upsetting. I worry every time I get into a car."

Said Jack Teseriero, president of the class of '79:

"We're all now only 19 or 20 years old and we've faced so many deaths already."

Diamond sells for record $20 million

The world's largest, flawless diamond — the fist-sized Star of Peace — has been sold to a wealthy Arab for an incredible $20 million!

The price was the highest ever paid for a gem — topping the $11.5 million in 1978 for the Premier Rose diamond. Thomas Leder, 38, of New York, who sold the Star of Peace, says he inherited the diamond from his mother, Elmer Leder, and sold it to the Arab sheik in a secret sale.

"If you saw it, it would knock your eyes out."

Faye Dunaway

Faye won't portray Crawford as a monster

Q. Faye Dunaway is doing that film on Joan Crawford which is based on the nasty book by the actress' daughter. Doesn't she feel ashamed to be portraying Miss Crawford in such a bad light? — Sally Meals, Santa Clara, Calif.

A. Faye promises that her role in "Mommie Dearest" will not destroy the late actress' image. "I won't play Joan as a monster," she said. "I see her as a woman who was trying to raise children and have a career in Hollywood at the same time. She failed in her efforts at being a mother, perhaps, but that failure is tragic — not monstrous. The movie won't be limited to that book at all. I'll play her with sympathy."

'The Fonz' is branching out

Q. I love Henry Winkler as "The Fonz" on "Happy Days," but isn't he getting sick and tired of playing that same role? Does he have any plans to do something else? — Michael Dever, Baltimore, Md.

A. Henry, who is a graduate of Yale Drama School, is staying with "Days" for now, but wants to do some movies in the near future. Meanwhile, he's formed a production company and is making some ABC Afternoon Specials for youth. One of the specials "Run, Don't Walk" about two handicapped teens has already been televised.

Rona hates to be called a gossip

Q. Rona Barrett is great on TV, but I understand that she hates being called a gossip columnist. Why does she resent what she does? — Fran Elwood, Denver, Colo.

A. Miss Rona does indeed resent the word gossip and thinks of herself as a journalist who reports "entertainment" news. "It (the word gossip) makes me cringe," says Rona. "It's a term that I believe is applicable to the weekly tabloids and not to me. My information, I believe, is accurate. I use sources, I use real information. I don't make up stories about people. I don't make up interviews with people. I don't put quotes into people's mouths when they haven't given to me those quotes."

Being tall was painful for Anton

Q. Susan Anton is gorgeous, but she's so tall. How does she feel about her height? — Al Rebach, St. Paul, Minn.

A. The leggy 6-foot singer-dancer says she's learned to take advantage of her tall good looks, but it wasn't always easy. "I've had a lot of pain over the years because of my height," says Susan. "I've felt rejected because of it. I didn't always know how to handle being different. The problem with being a tall woman is that you stand out even when you don't want to. Sometimes I long to walk into a room and not look over everybody's head. Being tall makes you feel powerful and special sometimes, but it can also be a problem, particularly with men, since I am taller than most guys."

Desperate ABC used a psychic to help pick out winning shows

By RAY BURNHAM

TV NEWS

They hired a psychic to help them pick which shows would be smash hits.

In a shocking revelation, network officials confessed that they signed Los Angeles psychic Beverly Dean to a two-year $54,000 contract as a program consultant.

"We hired her," ABC spokesman Dick Connelly sheepishly admitted.

"We gave her scripts to read and react to, using her abilities and creative intuitions.

"Her opinions — they were considered."

The hiring of a psychic shows how desperate TV networks get in their savage battle for ratings.

Despite their fancy attitude and marketing studies, they are so scared that they are ready to stoop to fortune-telling.

Incredibly, Miss Dean's psychic "intuition" was right on the mark when she told network bigwigs that "Taxi," "Soap" and "Three's Company" would become smash hits.

Even more amazing, she warned them that the comedy detective show "Tenspeed and Brown Shoe" — starring Ben Vereen and Jeff Goldblum — would start strong, but end up a flop.

Network heavies laughed at that prediction, but Miss Dean had the last laugh — the show was canceled after a short run due to poor ratings.

Miss Dean's stint as network psychic began in an eerie way.

Picked as Los Angeles' top psychic several years ago by a west coast magazine, Miss Dean was visited one night by two well-dressed but secretive men.

They turned out to be ABC president Fred Pierce and Tony Thomopoulos, then the network's vice president.

She claims to get her psychic impressions after the client writes out in longhand the strange phrase:

"I am three feet taller than Tiny Tim."

Dean told Thomopoulos that he would soon become ABC president — the job then held by NBC's current head Fred Silverman — and told Pierce that Silverman would soon hurt him.

Incredibly, both predictions came true.

Shortly after Silverman hurt Pierce by jumping to NBC and Thomopoulos was promoted to Silverman's job.

Dean said that both men tried to laugh off her predictions that came true.

But they kept listening to her when she called to tell them which shows she believed would be hits or flops.

Several months later in 1976, Pierce hired her on as a program consultant — warning her to keep her job and contract secret.

Miss Dean says that she kept on working for ABC and using her "creative" abilities to forecast hits.

She claims that she fell out of favor when she told officials that ABC would start sliding in the ratings and word of her psychic background began leaking out.

According to Miss Dean, she "read" the late Hubert Humphrey's handwriting in 1969 and predicted he would not be president; and also foresaw that famed football coach Vince Lombardi would die after seeing his writing sample.

'Lou Grant' star risks danger to learn her role

Linda Kelsey isn't the tough, hard-nosed reporter "Billie" that she plays on "Lou Grant" — but she ventures out in the dangerous areas of Los Angeles to bring realism to her role.

Many times, the 32-year-old shy but plucky actress can be found prowling the city along with a real-life reporter from the Los Angeles Times.

"People are going to believe in the show a lot more if we can get back and show what we're talking about," Linda told The NEWS.

"I can get a stronger grasp of what is being said by researching all the angles.

"We don't have as much tainly one thing about the show that I enjoy doing."

One of Linda's most frightening, but satisfying treks into the more sordid areas of the city came when the script aimed at the horrifying life of big town prostitutes.

Linda suddenly found herself trailing after these ladies of the night — making notes on their work habits.

"The hooker episode that we did was a true story," she says.

"I spent hours interviewing and talking to girls who led this type of life-style.

"It was frightening — but interesting. I mean you have normal looking girls who are nice, but live these frightening lives.

"Yet, they're happy for the walk away from it all at the end of the day."

One thing her research for the more violent episodes has done is make Linda even more anti-violent than before.

She's dead set against violence on TV and the way it can affect children. At the same time, she believes that if violence is handled correctly on TV it can educate viewers.

"I have a very hard time with violence," she says.

All in all, Linda's real-life research has been rewarding personally and professionally.

"People are very helpful when you say: 'I'm on the Lou Grant show and we're doing a

Poor Charlie's no-talent angels got exactly what they deserved

By REX WINSTON

I know this may come as some sort of shock to all you "Charlie's Angels" addicts, but I'm in seventh heaven now that the show is kaput. And seventh heaven is a lot more fun since those three dizzy detectives shed their halos.

Big deal, six crummy actresses have pulled off a hit and run TV accident. What's more, they've left the scene of the slime.

Good riddance to Charlie, Bosley, the Angels, those tight T-shirts and form-fitting short-shorts.

Based on past performances, it looks like we'll never have to put up with those dim-witted actresses again.

Let's look at all six angels individually and see how their careers are shaping up.

Farrah Fawcett: she was the first one to leave the show for supposedly bigger and better things. Only much to Farrah's shock, nobody seemed to care anymore. Her movies are bombs, her commercials are off the air. The only thing she's good for now is standing by while boyfriend Ryan O'Neal beats the heck out of a photographer.

Kate Jackson: She was next to go. Like Farrah, Kate wanted the glamor of movies. And, like Farrah, she's been a big bust. Her love life is about as happy as Farrah's, too. Kate's just dumped her husband, Andrew Stevens. Things look awful in Hollywood for Kate.

Shelley Hack: Remember her? Of all the angels, she was the absolute pits as an actress. After one year of her, the producers gave her the old heave-ho. She hasn't been heard from since. Sure, she's done a movie or two, but when nobody pays to see them, why bother?

Cheryl Ladd: here's the most ambitious and most stuck-up of the bunch. She lucks out and lands in a hit series. Cheryl takes this to mean that she's a singer all of a sudden. I don't have to tell you where her album wound up. Right smack at the bottom of the barrel. It may just be a coincidence, but as soon as Cheryl made a few bucks from TV, she dumped her husband and ran off with a new guy. Loyalty like this deserves something, maybe a punch in the snoot.

Jaclyn Smith: another one on the marriage merry-go-round. These angels get married and divorced quicker than Mickey Rooney. Jaclyn better get used to doing hair spray commercials because all her acting ability is tied up on top of her head. Remember, Jaclyn is the oldest of the current angels. Time is running out on her beauty. Pretty soon, all that's going to be left are mother roles on third-rate TV comedies. There's nothing funny about that.

Tanya Roberts: I kinda feel sorry for Tanya. Here she gets the one big break of her life and we never get to see her blossom as an actress. We have to give her the benefit of the doubt, maybe she was going to be the one who knows how to perform. But if history means anything, she probably would have been the sixth loser.

So shed no tears for the end of "Charlie's Angels." You folks haven't lost a TV show, you've gained some peace and quiet.

Tonight's episode: "The Chess Player." Diamond is hired as a bodyguard to a wealthy financier without the man's knowledge. The man's wife is worried because he refuses to take threats against his life seriously.

Richard Diamond was one of the first tough guy detectives. He was once a hard-nosed New York cop, but he did things his own way as a private eye. As a former cop, he had the edge on his fellow private detectives. Diamond got info they could only dream about. The first two years of the show were spent in New York. Then in 1960, Diamond moved to Hollywood, where the cases were juicier.

The trip west did him good, along the way he picked up a girlfriend, Karen Wells. He also got rich enough to afford an answering service. His contact at the message board was Sam, a woman whose face was never seen, only her great pair of legs. Too bad viewers never got to see her face — Mary Tyler Moore looked pretty good back then. Richard Diamond was played by the late actor David Janssen. But the show started as radio starring Dick Powell.

Television is the ruination of our young people.

Sex is used to advertise everything.

Many programs leave nothing to the imagination. Sex, drugs, arson, killings, adultery, lying, stealing, cheating are all there — every day.

No wonder our young people are turning bad.

Yes, there are some good programs on television — but they are in the minority.

Virginia Hart,
Sherwood, Mich.

Backward britches

"Hee-Haw" is my favorite TV show, but Buck Owens insults every rural resident by wearing his pants backwards.

Does he really think we country folks are so stupid that we don't know how to put on our pants?

Robert Eggert,
Cave, Mich.

Endless soaps

I'm tired of the bigtime soap operas — "Dallas," "Texas" and "Knots Landing."

They never end; they just go on and on.

I'd rather have cowboys and Indians than all of that sex!

I'll tell you how to take advantage of this amazing offer in just a minute, but right now, look at all the things you can instantly do with Kinetic-Energy chants and see if any or all of them are for you:

- Become loan-shop in thousand dollar bills . . . Regain your health . . . Look better, feel better . . . Heal others . . . Break all curses . . . Protect yourself from evil . . . Protect your home, family . . . Increase your income . . . Capture the hearts of those you desire . . . Put pressure on others . . . End bad habits . . . Dispel love and break up undesirable friendships . . . Purify yourself, your home and others . . . Obtain a constant flow of money . . . Find treasure . . . Settle your debts . . . Heal an unhappy marriage . . . Protect yourself from harassment . . . Soothe your nerves . . .

Sound like a miracle? Maybe it is, but the 265 chants listed in this truly amazing book actually draw out the explosive Kinetic-Energy locked within your body and help you use it for whatever you want!

KINETIC ENERGY CHANTS CAN BRING YOU SUDDEN WEALTH TO COVER ANY EMERGENCY

You can use any of the 265 Kinetic-Energy chants to survive a need for money. By using them, that other which would knock your neighbor to the ground will not even cause you to stagger!

WINS LOTTERY—Widow W., for instance, managed to put food on her table in the two years following her husband's death by doing odd sewing jobs. But the mortgage payments on her cottage were falling further and further behind—so far behind, in fact, that the bank was on the verge of foreclosing on the mortgage. One day, a neighbor suggested that she try a chant for "a financial windfall." Sure enough, after investing one of her hard-earned dollars in the state lottery and reciting one of the chants, she won $10,000 in the next drawing!

Raymond Buckland, long regarded as one of the foremost authorities on the occult, says that "there is no reason at all why these inflationary times should retard our economic growth." To prove his point, he shares how Bob M., who was having financial problems after moving away from his parents, received word of three better-paying jobs only one day after he used one of the magical chants for a "a better job."

Not only can you use Kinetic-Energy chants to obtain all the money you will ever need, but they also help you with your love life—whether you are married or still looking for your ideal mate!

WINS "IDEAL GIRL"—Willy J. fell head over heels in love with Janet M., who was considered to be the "ideal girl" by many of her male contemporaries. But to Janet, he was just another guy. Mike thought. Imagine his surprise then, when after a dance several nights after using a chant "to win the heart of the man you desire," many an envious eye watched as he left the hall with Janet firmly on his arm!

. . . And remember, it doesn't matter that you have a rival or several rivals for the person's affections. These Kinetic-Energy chants will see to it that YOU are triumphant!

If you are married, but your marriage is not a happy one, you can use Kinetic-Energy chants to do what even a trained marriage counselor cannot always accomplish. For example:

SAVES MARRIAGES—Desire C's marriage was on the rocks. Her husband, Chris, did not only squander his paycheck at the local tavern every week, but he lost his job in the process. Distraught, Deirdre turned to Kinetic-Energy chants to "heal an unhappy marriage." Within 24 hours, Chris was a new man! He suddenly came home, showered, put on a new suit, and went looking for a new job. From that day on, he has not even touched a drink!

YOU CAN GIVE YOURSELF A CIRCLE OF PROTECTION FROM ANY KIND OF ATTACK—BE IT PERSONAL OR SUPERNATURAL

STOPS SLANDER—Fran W. was the victim of vicious rumors which were mean to destroy her marriage. Soon after she used a Kinetic-Energy chant "to bring pressure to bear on others," however, the rumors stopped and finally died—saving her marriage!

PURGES DEMON—Curtis P. was convinced that he was possessed by a demon because he not only found himself doing things he didn't want to do, but things he actually fought with himself to avoid doing. For example, he loved animals. Yet, one moment, for no apparent reason, he took his beautiful pet rabbit outside and killed them one by one. Tears streamed down his face as he did it, but he had absolutely no control over his actions! Shortly after using a chant "against unknown entities," his problem ended. "Somehow," he said, "I feel as though I've been thoroughly cleansed. I feel great!"

With the knowledge of Kinetic-Energy chants, you have the power to purify—be it a house, a person, or whatever. You are, through the power of a chant, the most powerful mortal there is!

With these chants, you have the power to ensure that you are safe from accident, safe from disease, safe from impending disaster.

MEET THE AUTHOR

RAYMOND BUCKLAND has been actively involved in the study and teaching of the occult for over 25 years. During his career, Dr. Buckland has appeared on numerous radio and television programs and has lectured extensively about them. Dr. Buckland was the founder of America's first museum of the occult and is regarded as one of the foremost authorities on the subject. His name has appeared in several reference books, including, Who's Who in America, International Authors and Writers Who's Who and Dictionary of American Biography.

Are you safe from death? Well, look at the case of Peggy P.'s daughter, and judge for yourself.

SAVES DAUGHTER'S LIFE—Peggy P. had a premonition that there would one day be a terrible accident at the garden railroad crossing just outside the New Jersey village where she lived, and feared that her daughter might be involved in it. Less than a week after using a protective chant, her daughter's school bus was hit by a freight train—killing 28 of the 40 persons on board. Peggy P.'s daughter was the only one to escape injury of any sort!

SURVIVES TORNADO—Jeff F. had always heard how destructive tornadoes could be, but he had never experienced one. One fateful day, however, his turn came as a tornado approached his home with the speed of an express train. Using a protective chant, he and his family emerged from the tornado unscathed—to find that his was the only house left standing for blocks around!

CHANTS FOR YOUR HEALTH

In this tremendous book, you will find the twice health chants countless other people have used to achieve miraculous results. You'll see how Danny S. astounded his doctors by treating his mysterious stomach ailment . . . how Geoff L. overcame his marketing problem and became a radio announcer . . . how a country girl overcame her nervousness of a big city . . . how Margaret C. recovered from a near-fatal drug overdose . . . and much, much more!

These Kinetic-Energy chants can and will eradicate all signs of increased years. The wrinkles can disappear, the hairline stop receding, the paunch deflate, the double chin and spare tire disappear—all through Buckland's health-restoring chants.

Clumsy kitty plunges 100 feet from balcony and lives

It all started out as a simple pigeon hunt on the balcony — and ended with poor Benji, an exceptionally clumsy cat, plunging 100 feet to the sidewalk below. Deborah Guy says she and her hubby, Alan, were watching TV when a neighbor came to their door and said she'd seen Benji, wide-eyed, plunging past her apartment window. The couple raced downstairs to the sidewalk where poor, ruffled Benji was licking his fur and trying to figure out what happened. Deborah says Benji often stalked pigeons on the balcony and, apparently, he made a go-for-broke attack — and missed.

My ex-hubby has blown all of his money & now wants to spend mine

Dear Babs: Ten years ago my husband and I were divorced and we split up our financial assets. There was quite a bit of money involved and during the past ten years, he has lost all of his while I have invested wisely and made a lot more.

Now he is old and sick at 69, and wants to come back to me. I have always loved him and never wanted the divorce, but after it was over, I became very bitter. I don't know if I love or pity him.

I live alone and have only my dogs to keep me company. He tells me that he still loves me and wants to make up for all the hurt.

I don't know what to do about this situation. I am also ill and need someone to help me. Can you offer me any advice?

Sunset of Life,
Palm Beach, Fla.

Dear Sunset: You and your man found reason to go separate ways years ago, but that means nothing now. Your age and illness, plus the problems of living alone are heavy to bear.

If it's what you really want, why not let him come back for a trial period to see how the two of you get on. You may find the sunset years of your lives more rewarding than any other period as the two of you devote your time to companionship and mutual respect.

If it doesn't work, you've lost nothing. I think you should give him a chance.

Dear Babs...

Babs will be very pleased to help anyone who has a personal problem. Just write to: Babs, Weekly World News, 600 S. East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462. Letters will be answered only in this column.

My two lovers drive me crazy

Dear Babs: I'm 19 years old with a problem that's driving me crazy. I'm in love with two very hardworking, good-looking men and I want to live with them both.

Neither man knows about the other. They both love me and I love them but I can't decide what to do since I don't want to hurt either one of them.

I'm so torn up that I think about ending it all. Please help me out of this situation.

Torn Between,
Columbus, Ohio

Dear Torn: A love triangle just doesn't work without heartbreak to someone. I suggest that you evaluate the relationships with both men, listing down the plus and minus factors you feel about each. I am sure they can't be exactly alike.

Remember, if you delay, you may lose both relationships. It's far better to honestly break with one and continue the other relationship unhampered by dishonesty, than to stress yourself by trying to maintain both. Time will heal the loss of one and build the love of the other.

Fat and freckles turn off the boys

Dear Babs: I am 13 and I like a boy whose name is Mike. But he doesn't like me because I am fat and I am not pretty because I have a lot of freckles on my face.

Will you please help me?

Audrey,
Cascade, Va.

Dear Audrey: The hardest part of losing weight is wanting to. Try cutting a picture out of a magazine of a girl who is the size you want to be. Then paste a picture of your face on the face in the picture. Carry it with you and look at it often.

Ask your mom to help you work out a diet plan that is right for you. Soon you will find that the wrong foods will begin to taste bad.

Should I spank our bed-wetter?

Dear Babs: I have a son who will be 3 years old in April. He is still wetting the bed and I don't know what to do about it. I hate to spank him because we love him so much. What should I do?

Really Worried,
Rushville, Ill.

Dear Worried: A doctor will tell you if the problem is physical or emotional. Follow his advice and add love and understanding — no spanking — and the problem will soon be past.

My boyfriend says he loves me but he is always beating me up

Dear Babs: I'm 18 and pregnant. The man I live with is the father. He claims he loves me and the baby, but he doesn't act that way. He embarrasses me in front of other people and beats the daylights out of me.

A while ago, I met this guy who is very nice to me, but he doesn't know that I'm pregnant. My problem is in deciding whether I should leave my baby's father and tell the other guy that I'm pregnant and go with him. Please help.

Unhappy,
Hagerstown, Md.

Dear Unhappy: Since your boyfriend is hitting you, I definitely agree that you should consider leaving.

Before you decide whether or not to go with the other guy, you must tell him the truth. He may act differently too when he finds out. He will need time to adjust to the truth.

Maybe you can stay with your parents for a while, or some other family member, while you work things out. What is best for you is your first consideration, but your child counts too. No matter what you decide to do, keep in mind that your baby is a separate and unique individual. He or she will need your love and care for many years to come.

The decision about the second young man doesn't have to be made overnight, so don't try to rush it.

By BOB ROBBINS

In the spring of 1863 Henry Plummer looked like the answer to every frightened miner's prayers. A black-bearded giant of a man, he was running for sheriff of Bannack, Mont., on a law and order platform tough as rawhide.

He promised the voters an escape-proof jail and the tallest gallows in the country. More than that, he told them his special target would be the "Innocents," a gang of some 35 cutthroats who had terrorized the gold fields for two years.

With a death toll of more than 100 citizens on the trails out of Bannack and Virginia City, nobody dared leave either camp with a poke of gold dust on him.

When elected by a landslide, Plummer's first act was to call in the carpenters. Saws were soon whining and hammers resounding as his huge new gallows took shape.

Next, he deputized three hard-faced gunfighters named Stinson, Gallagher and Ray. They carried .44s low on their hips, and the rowdiest saloons grew quiet when they pushed through the doors.

His reputation as a town-tamer established, Plummer rode into neighboring Virginia City. It was a camp with 10,000 busy miners and one bumbling sheriff.

The useless lawman happily agreed to join forces with Plummer, who promised to ride herd on both camps while the sheriff simply enjoyed his paycheck.

The merger gave Plummer access to all records, including information on the movements of citizens and the shipment of gold by stage.

The camps settled down into models of their kind, and for a good reason — miners who resisted Plummer's law were pistol-whipped into submission.

LAW & ORDER

But one thing still disturbed the residents — in the bleak Badlands outside the camps, the Innocents continued to plunder and kill.

Plummer told the disgruntled miners that he and his deputies were scouring all trails for the outlaws — who always seemed to avoid his posse.

And by another coincidence, the stage lines were hit when they were carrying the richest cargo.

Business and professional men of Virginia City's business community, headed by Col. Wilbur Fisk Sanders, met secretly in the back room of a livery stable to study the problem.

They agreed that Henry Plummer was an honest man who needed help. And when George Ives — a suspected Innocent — shot down a retarded boy who had harmed no one, the group made a citizens' arrest.

Ives was found guilty in miners' court and went to his death on Plummer's gallows. Till the noose tightened around his throat, he believed Plummer would intercede for him.

He was cautiously quiet when the citizens moved against other members of the gang — Club-foot George, Red Yeager, and the animal-like Boone Helm who once ate his partner during a Montana blizzard.

"I don't mind dying," Yeager shouted from the scaffold, "but I'd like to have company! The boss of this gang is your sheriff, Henry Plummer."

But for reasons known only to himself, the sheriff had kept one record that damned them all. Incredibly, it listed the membership of the Innocents — a total of 69 names.

But according to one eye-witness report, the big sheriff heard his sentence with far less courage.

"He offered to leave the country," the witness said. "He implored time to settle his affairs, asked to see his sister-in-law — and finally, falling down on his knees, declared to God he was too wicked to die."

The citizens were unmoved. Bannack's law and order sheriff dropped to his death on his own gallows.

Fighting John Paul Jones was the father of our nation's mighty navy

By DIANE CHIN

Sea captain John Paul Jones was one of the greatest naval heroes who ever lived. At a time when Britain was the greatest sea power in the world, he and his battered ships pulled off victory after victory.

His miraculous wins destroyed British morale and fueled Americans with the hope that they could win the War for Independence.

Born in Scotland in 1747, John Paul went to sea at the age of 12.

When John Paul was 26, he turned up in Virginia. He was seeking refuge from the law after having killed a mutinous sailor in self-defense. Adopting the name of "Jones," John Paul also decided to adopt the new land as his own.

Two years later, the Continental Congress was struggling to put together an American navy and John Paul was commissioned lieutenant. Proving to be a fine and effective officer, he was promoted to captain in 1776.

That year, he terrorized the mighty British navy all up and down the Atlantic seaboard. John Paul and his crew captured more than 25 British vessels.

In 1777, John Paul sailed for Europe, to discuss war strategy with the United States Ambassador to France, Benjamin Franklin.

AMERICA'S GREATEST

Early in 1778, with Franklin's blessing, John Paul sailed right into the Irish Sea. He launched a furious assault on the British port of Whitehaven, Scotland, and emerged victorious. The British Navy hadn't been so humiliated in a century.

At this juncture, France became an ally in America's struggle for independence. But John Paul was disappointed with the French aid. He was able to secure only a few old ships — his flagship was a battered old hulk.

John Paul gamely renamed his pathetic flagship the Bon Homme Richard (in honor of Ben Franklin's "Poor Richard"), hoisted the stars and stripes, and there led his tiny squadron against Britain. On September 23, 1779, John Paul ran across the opportunity he wanted.

A large British naval convoy sailed into view against the background of the white chalk cliffs of Flamborough Head. The convoy was led by the 50-gun Serapis and the smaller, 20-gun Scarborough.

John Paul headed full sail toward the Serapis. The sturdy, new, copper-bottomed British ship and the old, decrepit Bon Homme Richard engaged in the most spectacular sea duel of the war.

He and his men fought their way aboard the Serapis and, suddenly, the English captain lost his nerve. He struck his colors and surrendered. As the faithful Bon Homme Richard went to the bottom of the sea, John Paul assumed command of the Serapis.

After the war, John Paul made only occasional voyages back to the United States. In 1787, he made his last trip home to accept a gold medal from Congress for his service to the United States.

Almost immediately after accepting the Congressional medal, John Paul sailed for Russia. There, he accepted the rank of rear admiral and led the Russian Navy against the Turks in the Black Sea.

John Paul returned to France in 1790.

He had few friends and his health was in steady decline. John Paul Jones died July 18, 1792 at the age of 45, just as he was about to be appointed as U.S. representative to treaty talks with Algiers.

Flying preacher's prayers bring him safely through crash

By RICK DONOVAN

Rev. Duane Sweet was at the controls, but God was his copilot when his small plane was splintered like kindling wood in a terrifying crash in a snow-blanketed mountain wilderness.

The Lynbrook, N.Y., Baptist minister knows he should have died when his plane plunged to earth like a comet, but, incredibly, he walked away without a scratch.

"If God had wanted to call me home, he could have done it very easily that day," Rev. Sweet told The NEWS. "But I'm alive and it truly is a miracle."

The 45-year-old flying minister was running out of fuel while on a flight between airports in New Hampshire. He knew of a small airstrip where fuel was available and changed course, hoping to reach it in time.

"I was having trouble finding the airstrip and I was just circling the area," Rev. Sweet recalled. "Suddenly, the engine sputtered and stopped. I turned off the engine to prevent a fire when the plane hit the ground.

"A plane crash isn't like a car crash where everything happens in a matter of seconds. When a plane is going down, you have a minute or so to think about things and sometimes that minute can seem like an eternity.

"I knew that in a very few seconds I could be dead," Rev. Sweet continued. "So I prayed, 'Lord Jesus, if it be possible, bring me through this.'"

Sweet said he managed to level off over a narrow dirt logging road but the plane suddenly dipped and plowed into a stand of trees. "The plane tore into the trees for about 400 feet. The wings were ripped off and the windshield just burst out. The fitting that anchored my seatbelt was snapped, but it didn't come apart. The whole plane just seemed to shatter."

When the splintered plane lost its forward momentum, it nosed down and plunged to the ground. For a moment, Rev. Sweet just sat in the mangled wreckage, unable to believe that he was still alive.

"Then I got out of there as quickly as I could," he told The NEWS. "When I was standing on the ground and realized I hadn't suffered so much as a scratch, I gave thanks to God for His protection.

"It seems funny now," he added with a chuckle. "But I remember saying, 'Lord, if only I could wake up in my bed.'"

Rev. Sweet crawled back into the twisted remains of the once-sleek Cessna 140 and turned off the emergency locator transmitter that had been slipped on only seconds before the crash.

"I knew I was all right and I was feeling fine and I was sure I could walk to help. I started walking and in about an hour I came on some snowmobilers. They were overjoyed to see me and they took me out."

"The plane was destroyed," Enfield Police Chief Peter Glese declared. "He's a very lucky man."

Rev. Sweet, pastor of the Hendrickson Avenue Bible Church, said the crash was his first in more than 23 years of flying.

"The ordeal has given me a new lease on life," he added.

The Rev. Duane Sweet says God answered his prayers and allowed him to survive plane crash.

It's snow place to make a long call

It's getting so you can't find a phone booth you can sit down in anymore — but the 100 inches of snow that piled up this winter in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., gave this teenager a place to sit and make his call. Of course, with the short cable he didn't really

Miracle boy who's defying the odds lives with heart outside his chest

No other child has lived more than a few days after being born with the condition.

"He's a brave little boy. I don't know how he's done it," said his father, Chris Sr.

Chris was also born without a breastbone, and because of this his lungs are restricted and don't produce enough oxygen. So Chris must spend about 14 hours a day with oxygen pumped into his body through a flexible tube connected to his chest. Behind him, he drags along a 12-pound oxygen tank on wheels.

Because he breathes through a hole in his chest, air bypasses Chris' vocal chords and he isn't able to speak more than an occasional, single word. But he's learning sign language.

"He's fantastic," said Margie Tucker, his teacher from the school. "He works and works at something until he can do it."

Devoid of the normal sensations of childhood, Chris could neither walk nor talk by the time his parents took him home more than two years ago, but the school is helping him catch up.

Pain and suffering have become a part of life for Chris, who has undergone 20 operations since his birth. His life has been filled with needles, knives, cold metal and machines. And he faces more operations as doctors try to get him to breathe without the oxygen tank.

"The doctors decided to cover his heart with a flap of skin, and that's what saved him," said Chris' dad. "Usually they try to push the heart back in the chest and then the lungs don't function."

Chris can do most things other children can do as long as he wears a protective shield over

"When he first came home from the hospital, he wouldn't touch anything he wasn't familiar with. He wouldn't walk on the sand or grass," his dad added. Now, "he's an outgoing little boy. He even rides a bicycle — I can hardly keep up with him."

He's also become a celebrity in the Philadelphia area where he lives and his father says he loves it. He's constantly recognized by people on

A comfy chair can cause as much strain as hard labor

You can relax in a chair and still be putting as much strain on your spine as you would be in heavy lifting, researchers say.

And that strain may damage muscles, nerves, even vital organs.

Scientific tests have zeroed in on the features to look for in a chair. Here they are, as reported in "Progressive Architecture."

The chair seat should have a rounded front to avoid cutting blood flow in the thighs. It should be adjustable, to permit feet to have firm contact with the floor. And it should be hard enough to let you squirm, something that prevents muscle spasms.

Black box reduces patient anxiety

Patients don't faint or worry in the McDonagh Medical Clinic waiting room any more, not since Dr. W.D. Johnson installed a "black box" that soothes them with subliminal messages.

The device uses soft music to mask a voice that reassures the patients. Patients are told they will be getting a psychological message and are offered a text of the message, but few bother to read it, Dr. Johnson said.

"A lot of people come here after other doctors have said they can't help them," he pointed out. "They're worried both about their illness and getting a new treatment, so fainting in the waiting room used to be common."

Heart attacks give exercisers warning

People struck down by heart attacks on the tennis court or the jogging trail almost always are those who had serious heart trouble before they started exercising.

A five-year study of 3,000 exercisers by Dr. Larry W. Gribbons of the Institute of Aerobics Research in Dallas failed to indicate exercise as the reason for heart attacks.

"It appears that middle-aged men who die suddenly or have cardiac events in association with exercise usually are individuals with severe coronary disease," Dr. Gribbons said.

His conclusion is reinforced by another study of 63 cases of sudden death during exercising which found no connection between the deaths and exercise.

All exercise does in such cases, Dr. Gribbons said, is to put added stress on an already sick heart.

Beans, onions combat diabetes

Green beans and onions have an amazing ability to lower blood sugar levels in people with diabetes, says a doctor from Indonesia.

The doctor put his diabetic patients on a special diet of five-and-a-half cups of green beans and one-third cup of chopped onion daily. He reported blood sugar levels had dropped in a week's time.

Laser can erase unwanted tattoo

An amazing argon laser can zap away an unwanted tattoo more easily than the traditional dry-ice or excision method.

An argon laser is a beam of energy that can pass through the skin, attacking the lesion beneath the tattoo and leaving the skin intact.

Dr. Gregory S. Keller of Santa Barbara Cottage Hospital in Santa Barbara, Calif., is using that laser beam to undo ink tattoos — and also to eradicate red birthmarks and moles.

"Almost everything that has been done to these lesions in the past had produced a worse-looking lesion than the patient started out with," Dr. Keller said.

Binge drinking bad for heart

A drink or two a day will keep the heart doctor away. But if you guzzle a half-dozen beers in one night and then abstain the rest of the week, you're in trouble.

Dr. Joseph J. Barboriak of the Medical College of Wisconsin warns that binge drinking brings blood alcohol levels high enough to increase oxygen use, especially in older persons. And this increased oxygen consumption could trigger attacks in those with heart disease.

Binge drinking also slows reflexes, something that could cause accidents, Dr. Barboriak said.

'Lithops' are big business for Ed Storm

The lithops are members of the cactus family, and have exotic names like Living Stones, Split Rocks, Stone Faces and Tiger Jaws.

Back in 1971 when growing his lithops was still a hobby, Ed, 56, wondered what he would do with the hundreds of plants he had grown from seed.

Finally, when he had to build a second greenhouse to contain his growing collection, the Axle, Tex., sculptor placed an ad in a gardening magazine offering the little critters for sale.

"I was overwhelmed by response," Red recalled. "And now I average 1,000 orders a week, from this country, Europe and even South Africa.

"I feel guilty taking money for something that is really a hobby for me, but I'm selling these people living sculptures, and that's what makes them valuable."

Kidnap-proof auto priced at $365G

But inside it has an emergency oxygen supply, an anti-riot shotgun, holsters on the front doors, electronic scanners, a camera to photograph following cars, buttons to eject foam and tear gas, strobe light "blinders" to dazzle an enemy.

There is an electrified field that sends a charge through the outside metalwork, and machine guns front and back.

"Should the executive be surrounded by kidnappers or a hostile crowd, he can switch on 'a pain field generator'," Elin said.

Actress Jane Fonda goes through one of the tough routines at her gym that keep her looking half her 44 years.

By MIKE BENSON

Sex-sational Jane Fonda does an amazing routine of body-slimming, strength-building exercises that keep the 44-year-old superstar looking like a woman half her age.

Incredibly, Jane's personal stretching and shaping exercises put her in such top shape that she amazed a fitness expert the first time she ever tried lifting weights.

"When she came in, I could see that Jane was in physically better shape than most women 20 years younger," said Tim Kimmer, at Gold's Gym in Santa Monica, Calif.

"Jane had never used heavy weights before, but soon she was doing really strenuous workouts in half the time it takes an average woman."

Jane has become an devoted to daily exercise that she opened "Jane Fonda's Workout" gym in Beverly Hills.

Now, Jane's top instructor Leslie Lilien has revealed the tummy-tightening, chest-lifting routine that Jane herself uses.

"Jane does this workout and an occasion she instructs advanced classes herself," said Leslie. "This program is designed for people who have had exercise and are on a complete exercise program."

Jane's workout lasts about an hour and a half and works all muscle groups. The exercises should be done until a burning sensation is felt — but don't push yourself.

- Begin with 2 to 3 minutes of deep breathing and stretching. Shake arms and legs to loosen muscles. Do light bending at waist, back, front and side to side.
- For 10 to 15 minutes fully extend arms out from the sides and make small circles with hands clockwise and then counterclockwise.
- For 10 to 13 minutes do side bends by bending torso as far as possible to each side. Then bend straight, place hands on hips and twist upper torso as far as possible. These rid the body of "spare tires" at the waist.
- For hips and thighs, stand upright, lift one leg with bent knee in front of the body as high as possible. Then lift each leg from the knee to the side. Do as many repetitions as possible. Work each leg equally.
- Next comes her aerobic or cardio-vascular exercise of jumping jacks or running in place done for at least two minutes. Then sit with legs spread straight in front and alternate stretching hands and head inward each foot.
- Tummy-tightening is done with various forms of situps — the bent knee situp, a double-time situp where the upper body is only lowered halfway to the floor or a slow situp.
- Also for the tummy, lie back on the floor, lift feet toward ceiling and bicycle ride. Do scissor kicks by lifting legs off the floor and crossing feet in front of body. Do both for a total of 15 to 20 minutes. Afterwards, stand and do some back bends to stretch.
- Do leg and hip lifts for thighs and hips. For leg lifts, lie on each side and raise leg as high as possible. Do 7 to 10 minutes per leg. Hip lifts are done by lying on back and drawing the feet almost directly under the bent knees. Lift buttocks from floor and lower slowly, but not quite back to floor. Do as many repetitions as possible for 10 to 13 minutes.

Meaning the food you take in, the calories you enjoy are burned away even more quickly by your own stepped-up metabolic system. Yes, metabolized and mobilized in as little as 2 to 3 hours after eating!

THE FOOD YOU EAT NO LONGER TURNS TO FAT!

So, obviously, since it takes far less food to satisfy you, lowering calories is a lark. And since the calories you do take in on this "crash-loss" diet program are burned right out of your body after every time you eat . . . you start to TURN SLIMMER, not only the very first day . . . BUT—after the very first meal—and every meal thereafter! as excess fat and flab start to disappear—GET CRITICIZED BY THE HOUR!

PROVE EVERY LOST OUNCE, EVERY LOST INCH—ENTIRELY AT OUR RISK

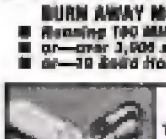
How would I look one week from today as much as 5 to 10 pounds lighter?

How would I look in 2 weeks with my waistline 2 to 4 sizes smaller?

BUT DON'T STOP THERE—If you need to lose still more inches, then continue the London University "crash-loss" diet, continue to take BIO-THEME/100 until you've reached the figure of your dreams:

6 INCHES CARVED OFF YOUR HIPS . . . UP TO ANOTHER
3 INCHES CARVED OFF YOUR THIGHS . . . ANOTHER
4 INCHES OFF YOUR BUTTOCKS . . . ANOTHER
6 INCHES OFF YOUR STOMACH . . . ANOTHER
6 INCHES OFF YOUR WAISTLINE!

Because NEXT TO COMPLETE STARVATION THERE IS SIMPLY NO OTHER MEDICALLY SOUND REDUCING PROGRAM THAT WORKS FASTER.



IF YOU READ NOTHING ELSE, READ THIS

This program involves a high-speed crash-loss diet that lowers caloric intake, essential to the reduction of body weight. Such results cannot be achieved solely through the use of the capsules. The more overweight you are, the higher caloric requirements, the more you should lose the faster you should lose it. Before starting this weight-loss program consult with physician to be sure you are in normal health, that your only problem is excess weight and simple obesity. Individuals with high blood pressure, diabetes, heart, kidney disease, thyroid problems, or pregnant or nursing women should not use except on advice of a physician. Do not exceed recommended dosage.

Only children are smartest

Firstborn or only children are smarter than other kids — but they don't have as many friends.

That's the result of a study of 1,720 grade school students in Riverside, Calif.

The researchers discovered that last-born children were most often the most popular kids on the playground. But when the kids had to select who in their class would succeed in life, firstborn or only children were usually chosen.

Gentle Bigfoot makes his home in woods outside a small town

A gentle and elusive Bigfoot has roamed the deep forests outside a remote mountain town for more than two years.

Astounded residents have awakened to the shocking sight of the hairy, six-foot creature with the face of a gorilla on their porches and in their pastures.

Dozens of people — hunters, housewives, farmers, salesmen and students — have seen the scarred-face creature who lives in the woods near the tiny town of Casar, N.C.

His eerie, chilling screams have pierced the still night air.

His body is covered with short and incredibly soft black hair and when he runs, his long arms touch the ground.

Hunter Dan Pauley was the first to see the creature. Dan had spotted a deer and was taking aim when a huge, black shape, unlike anything he had ever seen, emerged from the woods into the clearing.

"It was running, bent over, and once in a while his arms or front legs or whatever you'd call them would touch the ground.

"I looked at that thing and a few seconds later I was running, too, and I haven't been back in those woods since," he said.

Since the first sighting, dozens of others have reported seeing or hearing the gentle creature over a 30-square mile area near the small mountain called Carpenter's Knob.

"I nicknamed him Knobby because he was always seen around Carpenter's Knob and the name has stuck," said Robert Williams, an English professor at Gaston College. "We think of him as Bigfoot's cousin and as far as we know he's never harmed anyone. In fact, he's rather shy and he eats only vegetation."

Williams and his wife were awakened about 4 a.m. once by the screams of the creature.

"It was a very high-pitched screaming sound and it came about once every four or five minutes. It was coming up by the stream and it sounded like it was making about a half mile each time it screeched."

In December 1978, Minnie Cook was in her house near Casar when her small dog started barking fiercely. She went to the door and saw, across a dirt road, a creature that was just standing and looking at her.

"He looked like he'd weigh close to 250 pounds," said Mrs. Cook, who has since died, "and he was tall as a big man."

A few months later, Sammy Price, who lives a few miles from Casar, was awakened in the dead of night during a sleet storm by a hideous screaming.

"The sound was so awful I jumped straight out of bed and grabbed a light. And there he was, on the hillside right above the house, looking like a gorilla or something, but also like a man."

Knobby returned to the Price house so often — even during daylight hours — that townspeople mounted a hunt to search for his den.

"At the bottom of a ravine they found a cave under a huge tree and they found a small handful of short black hairs that had apparently been pulled out as the animal stooped over to enter the cave," said Professor Williams.

Knobby's tracks looked like a human hand — except the thumb jutted out at a right angle.

Twice, the curious half-man, half-ape has lumbered up to another resident's porch to eat the food the man kept for his livestock and pets. In the summer, the curious animal prowled through orchards.

And last August, farmer Findley Marsh heard his cattle making strange noises and went out to investigate. All the cattle were backed into one corner of the pasture and in front of them, but making no effort to attack, was a black, hairy creature pacing back and forth.

natural prostate rejuvenation

"Your marriage can be as happy as ours!"

IT'S POSSIBLE TO REPAIR AND REBUILD THE PROSTATE. TO GIVE IT NEW HEALTH AND POWER, TO RENEW POTENCY AND VITALITY! AND TO DO IT IN JUST 4 TO 8 WEEKS — NATURALLY — WITHOUT SURGERY!

By Carleton Freedman
Nutritional Science Writer

Prostate disorders are often referred to as "the scourge of the Western male." They're widespread among American males, and that's why this article has such important news for all those who suffer from prostate problems—and for those who wish to prevent prostate problems from even occurring.

It will tell you about a meticulous new product called ZN Mega-Mineral Tea, about Nutritional Life Corporation, the company that developed the tea, and about some important research on the natural relief of prostate disorders.

THE MESSAGE IS THAT THERE IS NATURAL, DIETARY HELP FOR PROSTATE SUFFERERS.

Without surgery. That ZN Mega-Mineral Tea can help repair and rebuild the prostate, restore vitality and potency, help bring the prostate back to natural size, health and power. And help keep it that way in the future!

AN ANNOUNCEMENT I AM AUTHORIZED TO MAKE—

Maybe you have prostate problems yourself. Maybe a friend or a loved one has such problems. Or perhaps you just want to help make sure that you'll never develop prostate problems yourself in the future. Whatever the reason for your interest, Nutritional Life has authorized me to include the following announcement as part of the material in this article:

"We want every American who has a prostate problem to have a chance—without financial risk—to try new ZN Mega-Mineral Tea. We will send anyone interested a 30-day supply (60 generous bags) of this tea, along with our confidential report (title) NATURAL PROSTATE HEALTH. If you feel our tea doesn't help you, then just send us back the amount you didn't use within 30 days. Even if it's only one tea bag. We'll refund your entire cost. But we'll let you keep our report, NATURAL PROSTATE HEALTH, in any event.

HERE'S WHY NUTRITIONAL LIFE CORP. MAKES THIS UNUSUAL OFFER—

Even though I'm a professional writer on nutritional science and nutritional research topics, this offer really surprised me. And my first reaction was this simple question:

"Why are you so sure of the prostate healing powers of ZN Mega-Mineral Tea that you're willing to make such a no-risk offer?"

HERE'S WHAT THEY TOLD ME—

Nutritional Life Corp. was ready with an answer. And it was backed by published documentation. This is it: "A milestone research project on prostate disorders took place at the Cook County Hospital in Chicago. It was directed by researchers at the nationally famous Center for the Study of Prostate Diseases. It involved 755 patients who suffered from a variety of prostate problems. And it took five years to complete.

The results gave a major re-direction to conventional thinking about prostate relief. And that was because it suggested that prostate problems could best be corrected naturally—without surgery. This is what the Cook County prostate research project revealed: The elements in ZN Mega-Mineral Tea are absolutely necessary for a healthy prostate gland.

NUTRITIONAL LIFE CORP.

Nutritional Life Corp. was founded by a group of dedicated research nutritionists who feel natural foods can do much to help ailments, but they also emphasize that it's good common sense to see your doctor when prostate problems arise.

ZN MEGA-MINERAL TEA—

A number of factors were considered in developing ZN Mega-Mineral Tea. Nutritional Life Corp. knew that our modern diets are poor in nutrition. And that the study emphasized that the elements in ZN Mega-Mineral Tea helped the prostate glands rebuild and rejuvenate itself naturally—without surgery! So ZN Mega-Mineral Tea is precisely formulated to be one of the most potent sources available. And it's also a delightfully delicious and refreshing cup of herbal tea. An natural ingredients, no drugs . . . Two relaxing cups a day, for a period of from 4 to 8 weeks are suggested. And it's a good idea for all men over 35 to drink it every day to help prevent prostate problems from arising or recurring.

ZN Mega-Mineral Tea is available only from Nutritional Life Corp., and it comes in a box of 100 tea bags. It's convenient to carry a bag with you when you're away from home for a healthy ZN refresher for your prostate gland. You get the FREE REPORT—NATURAL PROSTATE HEALTH. And you have Nutritional Life Corp.'s no-nonsense guarantee of complete satisfaction, or your money back. If ZN Mega-Mineral Tea doesn't bring you the relief you want, you'll have lost nothing—but you can keep the free report, NATURAL PROSTATE HEALTH. And if ZN Mega-Mineral Tea does bring you the relief from prostate problems that it has brought to so many others, then I'm sure you'll agree that its low cost was one of the greatest values of your lifetime!

NO RISK RUSH ORDER FORM:

YES, rush me a box of 100 bags of your new ZN Mega-Mineral Tea, along with your FREE REPORT, NATURAL PROSTATE HEALTH. German shepherd sulks after he returns from a boarding kennel

Dear Pet Talk: When we go away for a few days our four-year-old German shepherd has to be left in a boarding kennel. He hates it. Each time we pick him up, he's not friendly. In fact, we think he's sulking. It takes several months to get him back to being our loving dog. What can we do?

Constant Traveler,
Ridgewood, N.J.

Dear Constant Traveler: Your dog is paying you back for what he thinks is desertion. Many animals don't take well to the change and regime of a boarding kennel. My suggestion would be to try home care. If Sparky is cared for in your own home while you're away, the trauma of being left behind, and in a strange place, should be lessened.

Another pet owner that lives in your neighborhood or perhaps a friend's teenager who'd love to earn a few dollars might be willing to feed and walk Sparky while you are away.

Problem cats eat grass

Dear Pet Talk: When the weather's good, I like to let my three cats out in the yard for a sun bath. The first thing they do is eat the grass. They seem to graze on it like cows. Then, when they go back inside, they throw up the grass.

No Cow-herder,
Wayzata, Minn.

Dear No Cow-herder: It is good that you are giving your cats a sun bath, but can't you arrange it so that they can sit in a sunny window in your house?

Cats don't need to go outdoors, and they chance picking up fleas and ticks in the grass. Eating grass won't hurt them, but if they are throwing it up, they obviously don't need it.

My son's afraid of dogs

Dear Pet Talk: I grew up with dogs, and now I want my boy to know and love them, too. My five-year-old son is behaving like a sissy, though, afraid of every dog he gets near. I say we should get a dog and he'll get over his fears. My wife is scared he'll get bitten.

Old Hound Dog,
Nashville, Tenn.

Dear Old Hound Dog: I agree with you that growing up with animals is one of the best ways to raise a child. We always had dogs when I was young.

Your son sounds as if he's been scared by a dog. He's old enough now to be taught how to play with an animal, but I suggest you don't force him too hard.

When you pick out a dog, get one of the breeds that are gentle and good with the child. Small dogs are often short-tempered and prefer adults, and large dogs are usually just too big for a child to handle.

Puppy has teething troubles

Dear Pet Talk: Our cocker spaniel is eight months old and chews our hands whenever we pet her. She is beginning to hurt when she bites, and we're not happy about getting covered with dog slobber. What can we do?

Sally and Jim,
San Diego, Calif.

Dear Sally and Jim: Your puppy is at the teething stage, and is probably also chewing on everything else she can. Get her rawhide bones at the pet supply store. Don't ever give her the roast bone or rubber chew-toys because pieces of these swallowed are very dangerous.

Teething dogs need to chew, so make sure your dog always has her special rawhide available.

How to get rid of a pesky 'coon

Dear Pet Talk: Over two years ago my neighbor took in a lost baby raccoon, raised it, and then returned it to "the wild" when they moved.

Now he lives on our garbage and everyone else's. He's huge, he's mean, he makes an awful noise in the middle of the night, and I'm scared to death of him.

Peace Lover,
Coral Springs, Fla.

Dear Peace Lover: Raccoons are wild animals and ought to stay that way. It is criminal to befriend one. They can be precious and friendly when young, but as adults tend to turn vicious when cornered and unpredictable.

You can try calling the ASPCA for help in trapping the animal. If they catch him, they'll let him go in a wild area, but raccoons are wily, and I wouldn't count on their success.

First, you must secure your garbage can. Get a heavy galvanized can with handles that lock down over the lid. If you can, keep the tasty garbage in the house or garage until pick-up day.

The most complete solution of all is to get a large dog. Its barking will drive any prowling coon from your yard.

GIANT HOROSCOPE

by Mickie Dahne

ARIES

Mar. 21-Apr. 19

You're like an engine revved and raring to go this week, Aries, but every time you step on the gas, something grabs your foot. There's no way to avoid frustration, so just roll with the punches.

That long-awaited raise should be just around the corner, and you will soon be free to indulge in a spending spree. Check out winter sales on clothing and household goods.

TAURUS

Apr. 20-May 20

A tense situation could explode this week, dear Taurus, and with your stubborn nature you refuse to budge an inch. Stubbornness is not always the route to success, remember.

Surprisingly, though, you may feel better about a broken relationship than you thought. You're under less strain and you feel good about life. The days are sunny and bright.

GEMINI

May 21-June 20

After the upheaval of the past weeks, you'll welcome a return to routine, dear Gemini. At work, the days go smoothly and you'll be so content, you'll sparkle at home.

It's a good time for small social gatherings, but avoid anything that could be a major distraction and lead your ship off course. It's straight steering and your destination is clear.

CANCER

June 21-July 22

These are quiet days for you, Cancer, and there's little to deter you from making gains in personal and professional areas. Make sure you know where you're heading or the week will slip by and you'll have nothing to show for it.

Your defensiveness poses problems as someone you know seems overly sensitive. Instead of taking offense be sympathetic.

LEO

July 23-Aug. 22

This is a week of highs and lows, dear Leo. On the troubling side, someone close to you is likely to experience health problems and you'll have to keep close watch. A dose of Leo love will boost spirits.

On the high side, you're perfectly tuned and able to handle all those unexpected challenges. Clear away correspondence or finish filling out those annoying forms.

VIRGO

Aug. 23-Sept. 23

Hold yourself in check this week, dear Virgo, and don't make snap judgments or split-second decisions. Well-conceived plans, especially regarding travel, should be carried out now as the next few weeks will not be good for travel.

Your purity of drive could find you at odds with one who wants you to be more flexible. Remember, you have to give to get.

LIBRA

Sept. 23-Oct. 22

This will be a quiet, but an enjoyable and productive week for you, Libra. Now is the time to say "Yes" to invitations from those whose friendship you'd like to develop.

Harmony is the mood of the week and you're in such a calm frame of mind you'll be able to analyze a business offer presented. Seek advice, but don't be afraid to take a plunge.

SCORPIO

Oct. 23-Nov. 21

A risk you took a while back could start to pay off now, Scorpio, and your checkbook gets a much-needed boost.

Still, there are serious problems in your psychological attitude and it's time to pull out that old Scorpio resolve to look at yourself fair and square and take steps to get back on the right track. Professional assistance could be the solution.

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Your ability to learn quickly will help you digest a new task this week, Sagittarius. Don't feel tied to the tried-and-true method. Strive for originality.

On the home front, be considerate to others and watch out for your tendency toward self-indulgence. Other people will indulge you if you put out sincere, positive vibrations. Surprise a loved one with a gift.

CAPRICORN

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Dependable Capricorn, you can sit back and relax while others are frantically rushing to complete their income tax forms. Your taxes were done weeks ago and more than likely you've moved on to other, more pleasant, matters.

These are good days to indulge yourself with a small spending spree or surprise a loved one with an imaginative gift. This is the time to mix business with pleasure.

AQUARIUS

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

A vague discontent could color your decisions so step back and take a careful look from all angles. This is no time to let moodiness rule you.

Your search for something to give your life more meaning could lead you to a humanitarian cause. Volunteering to assist troubled youngsters or lonely senior citizens will be so rewarding for you as it is for them.

PISCES

Feb. 19-March 20

A burst of energy will allow you to accomplish anything you set your mind on doing this week and you'll be the envy of those around you.

You can breeze through routine chores, then move on to new projects. Start by getting mail answered, bills paid and little repair jobs around the house completed. Now you're ready to start that new hobby you've been thinking about.

This week's birthday

JULIE CHRISTIE
APRIL 14, 1940
ARIES

Julie Christie, that dignified yet sensual actress of stage and screen, will be 41 this week. Julie was born in Assam, India, under the sun-sign of Aries.

Julie has an interesting natal chart. With Saturn and Uranus in Taurus, she may be very uptight about losing her money, but she'll also do well making money.

These insecurities have done much to push her into hoarding, and scrimping even when she can afford the best.

Venus in Gemini creates some difficulties in her love life. Julie is very flirtatious and very quick-witted. Flirting, for her, is not a sign of infidelity but she has a hard time convincing others of this.

She seeks change, and needs change to keep her interested in life.

Her need for excitement and interesting social life, doubles with Mars also in Gemini. She probably causes arguments just to get things going on an interesting, fast-paced scale.

The sun and Jupiter in Aries, enhances her acting ability and voice. Most of her chart shows an extremely self-centered person, but this does not mean she is not loving or kind in her own way. Even with her money fears, she can be extremely brave, and jump into dangerous situations without blinking an eye.

Astro Match Ups

By Skip Fickling

Leo male — Cancer female

When the curtain goes up on this act, the Leo's Cancerian wife or girl friend may act more like a Lion than he does. She's crazy about him.

He needs someone who is true blue — an apple pie all-American girl, pink-cheeked and supremely loyal. She will compliment all of his ridiculous projects and when he blows off steam she will calm him down. And when he's sick, hurt or just plain dragging, she will take him in her arms, straighten his crown and get him purring again.

In return the Leo will help her through her emotional ups and downs and try to keep her level in her flight through life. She will probably be a lot more aggressive because of her association with Leo.

If Leo can't drive her out of her shell, nobody will and he'll eliminate her doubts and fears.

He will pour on the charm and she will love it. Cancers are known to blow hot and cold sexually — but not in this Match Up.

The Leo is smart but he just never seems to grow up. He will love to entertain, especially his own children. They'll never take him seriously, but will respect him deeply. And there is no mother like a Cancer. She is a lighthouse, a fantastic refuge. When the children need help they will go to her.

World's tiniest television station sometimes doesn't have any viewers

By DEE WHITTINGTON

"Sometimes I go home and not even Ella is watching our station," laughed David, who took over KYUS-TV in Miles City, Mont., 11 years ago.

The station is so small ratings services don't even keep tabs on its audience.

"I know how many viewers we've got," David told The NEWS. "At a high point, like when 'Little House on the Prairie' is on, we've got about 4,000 homes tuned in. The low is about 500 homes."

But, incredibly, the small, family-run operation with only five employees manages to put on five, half-hour live programs a day, including news, sports, a religion show, something called "Rancher 1981" which is about anything David and Ella want it to be about. Ella does a cooking show and the husband and wife team get together for a children's show.

"Ella does the filming, the programming and the bookkeeping. She's the receptionist. She prepares the logs. She handles the correspondence," says David. "She does the weather at 6 and when I get tied up, she does news and sports."

David is frequently tied up. Aside from his duties on half a dozen national sports committees, he's an insurance agent. And he's often out of town on seminars.

"I've got to do one in a few days on 'How Not to Run a TV Station,'" he confessed jovially.

From first-hand experience, he can offer such advice as: make sure the camera is plugged in before you go on the air and if you're going to have a conversation with a friend on the air, don't forget the audience can only hear your side.

"We have to do everything here that NBC in New York does," says David, "and they have, I guess, over 1,000 employees."

So David writes commercials — which often sell for $5 a spot and have, on occasion, been traded for a cup of coffee — and plays a phonograph in the background, and does news and sports and files dozens of government reports.

"Our commercial rates are pretty flexible," he says. "Usually, I'll ask someone how much they've got to spend in their advertising budget and if they say $250, we'll make sure they get plenty of spots for their money."

Because the couple feels so much a part of the community, they've taken their cameras and their shows to schools to cover spelling bees, to senior citizens' homes for talk shows, to kindergarten classes, to businesses that were in trouble and needed a boost.

"And that was all in one day," David laughed. In between, they rushed camera and crew to a grocery store to film a commercial.

They've relayed messages from one family member to another on the air. When one family lost their baby's diaper bag, David put out a city-wide appeal — and two days later, the bag was turned in.

Hubby David is Ella Rivenes' guest on her cooking show on KYUS-TV — the world's tiniest television station.

NEWSQUOTE

"I wasn't one of those fancy New York actors who learned his craft on the stage before going to Hollywood. It's tough to be a star first, before you're trained, but I never gave a damn about the reviews."

— Tony Curtis

Bitter Burt vows he'll shed his good ol' boy image

Rough an' tumble macho man Burt Reynolds wants to shed his "good ol' boy" image that made him millions and become a serious actor. The box office king is so serious that he says his upcoming fluff flick "Cannonball" will be his last action-fun movie. "'Cannonball' is it for me," swears Burt, who was more than miffed when he failed to get an Oscar nomination for his latest serious-type effort "Starting Over." "It's time I did a dramatic piece. The thing I haven't used in a long time is the power I had in 'Deliverance.' People have forgotten I can do that." If you're serious about getting serious, Burt, how come you're making that fun-fun movie with Dolly Parton, "Best Little Whorehouse in Texas"? — New York Post Headliners.

Dashing "Vegas" star Robert Urich says his romeo image as girl-chasing private eye "Dan Tanna" is all wrong. "I must be doing a much better acting job than I thought," chuckled the handsome hunk of macho. "I've always been a one-woman guy, unable to juggle more than one relationship at a time." The modest heartthrob even brags that the first woman he ever made love to was his first wife. — Dick Maurice.

King of the Don Juans, Warren Beatty, is up to his old kicks with the ladies again at the romantic "Oak Room" in Manhattan's posh Algonquin Hotel. The handsome actor keeps turning up there for love-ins with a different lovely each time. Warren's black book must be bigger than the New York City phone directory! — James Brady.

Peanut potentate Jimmy Carter has flipped his lid for a very ritzy home in Atlanta. The shack that's caught the eye of the ex-Prez is said to be a dead ringer for "Tara," the rambling plantation house in "Gone With the Wind," and is located across the street from the official home of Georgia's governor. The modest mansion carries the immodest price tag of $900,000. That ain't peanuts. — Washington Star's Ear.

Fiery tempered Bianca Jagger, ex-wifey of the "Rolling Stone" Mick, may have found a new man to pay her bills. The jet-setting lady's new beau is French oil tycoon Olivier de Montal. Bianca's supposedly feeling very insecure since she settled with Mick Jagger for a measly million or two at their divorce. But Ollie is filling that void. At Christmas, he gifted the raven-haired firecracker Bianca with a three-carat diamond ring. Since then, she's been resting up on the sun decks of his huge and luxurious chartered yacht. — Nigel Dempster.

Broadway's hottest rumor is a new romance between lanky superactor Donald Sutherland and sex-sational young actress Blanche Baker, his costar in the play "Lolita." Blanche, who plays an 11-year-old budding beauty in the play, is actually 24, but the 38-year-old Donald doesn't mind older women. And Donald's romantic track record includes some hot times with his former leading ladies, all of them exceptional beauties. Remember his sizzling off-screen fling with Jane Fonda when they made the great flick "Klute"? — Marilyn Beck.

Serve a tasty celebrity supper

By DEE WHITTINGTON

Clip and keep the recipes — you'll find a complete meal from appetizer a la Denver to Edward Asner's dessert.

John Denver's Crab Meat Dip

Mix together 8-ounce package cream cheese, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon lemon juice and 1 small onion, minced. Place on serving platter, top with ½ bottle Heinz chili sauce, then 1 can crabmeat or frozen 6-ounce package, thawed and drained. Sprinkle with parsley flakes, chill. Serve with crackers.

Robert Redford's Whole Wheat Bread

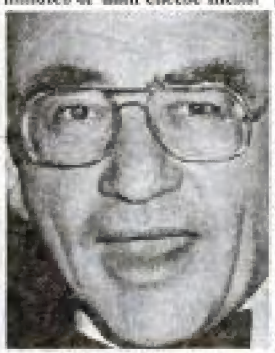
Combine 1 egg, beaten, with 2 cups buttermilk, 3 tablespoons molasses or honey, and 3½ tablespoons melted butter. Set aside. In separate bowl, stir 2 cups whole wheat flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Stir into wet mixture. Add ½ cup walnuts and ½ cup raisins. Spoon into 2 small loaf pans and bake in 400-degree oven for one hour.

Shirley MacLaine's Hawaiian Salad

In serving bowl, mix together 1 can shredded or chunky pineapple, 1 pint sour cream, 2¼ cup coconut, 1 package mini-marshmallows. Chill. Before serving, decorate with maraschino cherries around top of bowl. Serves 4 to 6.

Sophia Loren's Baked Pasta

Lightly brown ½ chopped onion in 1 tablespoon olive oil. Add 2 cups canned tomatoes, ½ teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and cook slowly for 20 minutes. In separate pot, boil 16 ounces rigatoni. Drain well. Stir in a little bit of sauce. Grease bottom of casserole dish with shortening or butter and dust with bread crumbs. Place half the pasta in casserole, layer with sauce, 4 ounces thinly sliced Mozzarella cheese and scatter with few basil leaves, grated Parmesan cheese and cover with next layer of pasta, rest of sauce and more Parmesan cheese. Top with 16 ounces hot Italian sausage, browned and cut into chunks. Spread thin layer of Mozzarella cheese on top and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until cheese melts.



Edward Asner's Shaker Lemon Pie

Slice 2 large lemons paper thin. Add 2 cups sugar and let stand for at least 2 hours, turning occasionally. Add 4 well-beaten eggs and mix well. Turn into pastry shell for two-crust pie, arranging slices evenly, and cover with top crust. Cut several slits near center. Bake in 450-degree oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake for 20 minutes or until knife inserted near edge of pie comes out clean. Cool before serving.

Next week: A star-studded brunch.
